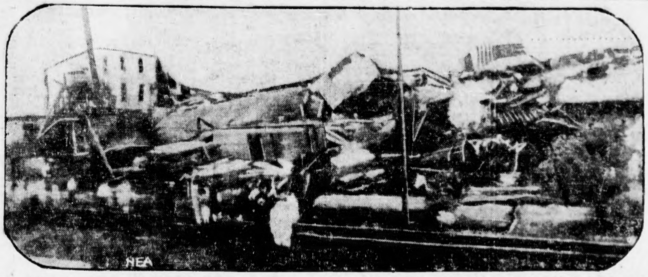
ACCUSED JESTS AT CHARGE

FIRST PICTURE OF STORM-TORN ROCKFORD



By a daring midnight auto ride along roads that were choked with the storm's debris, an NEA and Bulletin correspondent brought this first picture out of Rockford, Ill., where 30 were killed and many injured by a tornado. It was rushed to Chicago and there placed on the telephoto wires. The picture shows the ruins of the Rockford Cabinet Co., where the death toll was the heaviest. The fury of the twister tossed freight cars against the walls of the four-story factory, as shown here. Property loss ran into millions.

MORE PLANES WILL SEARCH FOR GODFREY

Anxiety For Flier's Safety is Growing at Ottawa

OTTAWA, Sept. 21.—Possibility of other planes being sent to search for Squadron Leader E. A. Godfrey and his three companions, lost somewhere in the Peace River country on their flight towards Fort Smith, was indicated by officials of the department of national defence, in the event that no word is received from the missing aviators today.

Captain T. Mercer, of the Royal Canadian Air Force, has been despatched from Ladder Lake air base in northern Saskatchewan, via Fort McMurray and Chippewyn, to follow the route believed to have been taken by Godfrey's ship. A report from the relief plane is expected later in the day. Captain Mercer will come down at different points in his endeavor to find out from the trappers and Indians if the plane was sighted on its flight northward.

Should no sign of the missing aviators be found, it is possible that a motor launch will be sent along the Peace River to search the inlets where it is thought the machine might have descended, officials stated today.

No word has been received since the fliers landed at Peace River on Sunday and increasing anxiety for their safety is being felt by departmental officials. In company with Wing Commanders J. L. Gordon and L. S. Breadner and Sergeant-Major Graham, Squadron Leader Godfrey has been conducting an inspection of air bases in the northwest.

His Opponent Carried Too Much Weight

BROCKVILLE, Sept. 21—A big black bear lost out in an encounter with a Canadian Pacific freight train last night near Arendale Station, in northern Frontenac county, and there is not enough of bruin left now to make a pair of mitts. The bear had wandered onto the tracks and was blinded by the glare of the headlight. There are not many black bears seen thereabouts except during the berry season, as they are night prowlers.

PONOKA MAN IN JAIL TO AWAIT TRIAL

Hospital Attendant Tells of Terrible Assault on Patient

Exclusive to Bulletin

PONOKA, Sept. 21.—Accused of beating Dr. Arthur Hobbs, inmate at the institution, so badly that he later developed acute pneumonia and died three days later, Walter Scott, former attendant at the Ponoka mental hospital, was committed for trial at the Ponoka police court Thursday afternoon on a charge of manslaughter. Magistrate G. Scott, of Red Deer, presided at the hearing.

Attendant Lord, who originally told hospital officials of the alleged assault and as a result was badly beaten by seven other attendants, who on Tuesday received two months in jail each for it, described the assault made upon Dr. Hobbs by Scott.

Tells of Assault

Lord had been at the institution two weeks as an attendant, and was in a ward where Scott was senior attendant. On the day of the assault Lord had gone into the ward where Dr. Hobbs was kept and had unsuccessfully tried to make the patient eat.

Scott came in, and when Dr. Hobbs still refused to eat Scott struck him several times on the chest and then placed him in a straight jacket.

Dr. Hobbs pleaded to be let out of the straight jacket, Lord said, and

154,000 People Must Be Fed In Porto Rico

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Sept. 21—Under the leadership of Henry M. Baker, Red Cross director of disaster relief, the Red Cross completed its survey of approximately one-quarter of Porto Rico's storm area Thursday and reported its estimate of damage and casualties.

DEATH LIST IS GROWING FROM STORM

Plague Spectre Appears Over Florida Everglades —Over 500 Dead

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Sept. 21.—The plague spectre today appeared over the Florida Everglades, scarcely five days behind the hurricane that took between 500 and 800 lives.

The immediate problem was recovery and burial of bodies. Living conditions in several refugee camps have been made nearly impossible because of their presence.

Already evacuation of women and children from Pahokee, Belleglade and refugee camps along the eastern shore of Lake Okeechobee was nearly completed. They left their men behind, conscripts in the battle against disease.

Abandon Death List

All efforts to check the death list had been abandoned today as officials came out of the glades with confirmation of orders to bury as fast as possible.

But Governor J. W. Martin came

Paralysis Claims Another Victim

WINNIPEG, Sept. 21— Infantile paralysis claimed another victim in Winnipeg, making the epidemic death toll 17 since mid-July, but not before heroic measures were taken by doctors, nurses and city firemen to save life.

Stricken with the dread disease, Wm. Karodrudska, 26, of Headingly, Man., was brought to a local hospital. His condition was serious, and with his breathing all but stopped, artificial respiration was employed.

An emergency call was sent to the central fire hall for a pulmotor, and firemen rushed to the hospital. For six hours, working in shifts, hospital attendants kept him alive. But his condition was so weakened that he finally died.

TORONTO, Sept. 21.—Special despatches from Ottawa to the Mail and Empire and the Globe state that the department of marine has suggested to the ship-owning interests of the great lakes that eastbound grain laden vessels should not leave Fort William or Port Arthur later than December 5.

This suggestion, according to the despatches, is made with a view to reducing as low as possible the peril of lake navigation.

TODAY'S ODDEST NEWS

THIEF HAS POCKET PICKED BY COLLEAGUE

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—A few hours after he stole $3,086 from the safe of the Hotel Buckinham, No. 101 West 57th street, while a clerk there in February, 1927, he fell asleep on a bench in the D. L. and W. station at Hoboken and had his pockets picked of all but $97, Jules Galiardi, 25, of No. 1848 54th street, Brooklyn, told detectives at police headquarters yesterday.

Galiardi was arrested at the Brooklyn house Wednesday night. According to his confession as related by the police, the clerk had gone into debt on racing tips given to him by guests.

MOSCOW APES FOOD COSTS $15 EACH DAY

MOSCOW, Sept. 21.—Two prized orangoutangs in the Moscow zoo are eating up $15 worth of choice fruit a day and thumbing their noses at millions of proletarians who can't afford to spend that amount for food in a month.

In the name of science the apes, Gustav, a 17-year-old widower, and his son Fritiz, 1 year old, stow away delicacies which almost no pocketbook can touch in Russia.

CONDEMNED, WRITES JEST ON CELL WALLS

ANGERS, France, Sept. 21.—On the wall of the cell of a condemned prisoner, recently executed, police found the following:

"Prompt treatment of cancer, tuberculosis, gout and all diseases in general by the Deibler method. Inquire at Paris of M. Deibler; treatment free."

M. Deibler is the official executioner of France.

British Empire Delegates Will Enjoy "Free Day"

WINNIPEG, Sept. 21—With all conferences cancelled, delegates of the Empire Parliamentary association who arrived here today have the day free except for a Canadian club lunch. Negotiations had been under way for a visit to the grain exchange and a talk on operations of the wheat pool, but the negotiations fell through. When delegates were here on their way westward they conferred with representatives of the wheat pools and the idea in the conference proposed for today was to get further information in regard to grain handling.

Spiritualists Organizing For Next General Election

Those Who Promise Support to Party Will be Actively Held in Campaign—Others Will be Black-listed

LONDON, Sept. 21.—Spiritualists are actively organizing for participation in the next general election, but not as a party. Candidates for the house of commons who promise their support to the spiritualists will be actively supported, while those who fail to promise the spiritualists what they consider a full measure of freedom, will be opposed.

Sir Frank Merriman, solicitor-general in the Baldwin government, is one of the candidates who has been particularly marked down for opposition. Unless there is a change in the government's view towards the spiritualists' demand for an alteration of the laws concerning them, they will advocate Sir Frank's defeat when he seeks re-election in the Rusholme district of Manchester.

The spiritualists desire an amendment to the Vagrancy act of 1824 and another to the Witchcraft act of 1768. Under these laws mediums are ordinarily prosecuted. It is asserted that Sir Arthur Conan Doyle has heard from Sir William Joynson-Hicks, the home secretary, that the government will decline to introduce the amendments.

Says He Will Prove Stories of Murders To Be Gross Lies

Hid to Keep His "Poor Little" Mother From Worrying

By Staff Representative
(The Vancouver Daily Sun, Copyright)

VANCOUVER, B. C., September 21.—It was to shield "poor little mother" from the pain of knowing her son was charged with monstrous crimes that Gordon Stuart Northcott gave British Columbia the most thrilling man hunt in its history.

Thus Northcott explained to a newspaperman the reason for his flight. He bitterly denied being guilty of the Riverdale, Calif., "murder farm" charges and declared he will fight extradition.

"There have been a lot of stories circulated about me," he said. "They are all untrue. Good God, what awful things they say about a man. Some people have been suffering from too much imagination, and a lot of people will be sorry when this case is cleared up."

He was asked to explain why he had disappeared.

"Poor Little Mother"

"I had to protect poor little mother from this," he said. "I simply could not tell poor little mother of what they were accusing me. My God. If poor little mother had known of these charges it would have killed her.

"So I kept it all from her, newspapers and everything. I was forced to hide them. I wanted to get her away to a safe place, then I decided to come back alone and fight this thing."

He talked more about the charges, suggesting they had been "trumped up."

As comment on the disappearance of Mrs. Winnifred Clark, his sister, he offered a contemptuous smile.

Interview On Train

"I suppose they will say I killed her, too," he remarked, glancing at a newspaper he had which stated that Mrs. Clark was suspected of having met foul play. Northcott gave the interview on the train which bore him from Kamloops to Vancouver. It was not even necessary to ask him for a statement. He started speaking of his own accord.

The youth betrayed no nervousness only in his frequent use of a tube of salve which he touched to his dry lips.

"Well, take a good look at the horrible criminal. Does he look as terrible as he is painted," he said. Northcott is an extremely good looking youth and has an almost winning manner. His fair hair sweeps back in an easy wave from the parting on the left, and there is a ready smile on the lips beneath his well modeled nose. His eyes alone are peculiar.

LADY BYNG'S UNCLE PROVED BENEFACTOR

By HENRY SOMERVILLE
Exclusive Cable to The Bulletin

LONDON, Sept. 21.—Lady Byng, wife of the former Governor-General of Canada, and her 80-year-old mother, the Hon. Lady G. Moreton, are the only surviving relatives of the late Pandeli Ralli, from whom Lady Byng inherited a fortune of $3,750,000. Lady Moreton was Ralli's sister.

The Greek millionaire was famous in the social life of Great Britain. He inherited the Greek merchandising business built up by his father, and though he was educated in England and thoroughly Anglicized, he never lost his love for the land of his forefathers nor his hatred of the Turkish oppressors.

Fled Over Mountains

He was used to recall how his mother, when a girl, had to flee barefoot through snow and over the mountains to escape from the Turks.

He had a house in Belgrave square where he entertained in the grand manner. King Edward was his frequent guest. He made friends with Kitchener when the latter was a young and obscure officer and it was from Ralli's house in Belgrave square

Records Philadelphia Brewery Are Seized

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 21.—Seizure of the records of the Weisbrod and Hess brewery by District Attorney Monaghan was considered today one of the most important developments in the grand jury investigations of bootleggers, gang murders and alleged bribery of the police, since the inquiry was started more than a month ago.

Reports that the district attorney had established connections between the brewery and a group of politicians and prominent citizens were current, but Mr. Monaghan would not confirm them.

Minister of Telephones Urges Arbitration to Settle Dispute

Advocating submission of differences between the Alberta government telephones and the city telephone department to a regulatory commission, a letter on the subject was delivered to His Worship Mayor A. U. G. Bury on Friday on behalf of Hon. Vernor W. Smith, minister of railways and telephones.

The "differences" referred to have regard to an offer submitted by letter dated March 5 last, whereby the Alberta government telephones expressed willingness to purchase the city telephone system for $2,900,000 which, according to the letter, was about $600,000 in excess of valuation of the system. In the alternative the government system suggested reference of the case to an independent tribunal or regulatory commission, such as the Dominion Board of Railway Commissioners or the Public Utilities Commission for decision.

City Not Selling

After biding time the city, on July 11, replied to the offer that it had no desire to dispose of the system and pointed out that by decision of the city council at a meeting held in the last week of April, there was no intention of disposing of any civic utility.

The letter of Hon. Vernor Smith reads as follows:

Edmonton, Sept. 21.

"Dear Mr. Bury:—

"Since receiving your letter of July 11 we have been giving further careful consideration to the

Contractor Shot When Held Up By Thugs Who Fail To Get Payroll

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—David Angus, 54-year-old contractor, today saved the $6,000 payroll he was taking to his employees on a Riverside Drive church, but the effort may cost him his life.

Angus and his son David Jr. were held up by three armed men as they left their fourth floor uptown apartment.

Angus put up a fight and was shot in the abdomen. The robbers fled to the street without the money. Angus' condition was said to be critical.

Prince George's Vessel Rushing To Give Aid

PANAMA, Sept. 21.—All preparations by the British colony to entertain Prince George who is serving aboard the British cruiser Durban as Lieutenant Windsor, have been disrupted because of orders received by the vessel to proceed without stop to the West Indies to give aid to hurricane victims. The Durban is expected to arrive Sunday morning and after fueling will immediately pass through the Panama canal and head for Nassau, the Bahamas.

Raising Of Duty Bituminous Coal To Be Opposed

VICTORIA, B.C., Sept. 21.—The government of British Columbia will oppose the application that is to be made before the tariff advisory board of the dominion on September 25 for the raising of the duty on bituminous coal entering Canada. A. C. Boise, K.C., of Ottawa, has been instructed by Hon. H. H. Pooley, K.C., attorney general, to appear before the advisory board and protest the increase. It is felt by the attorney-general that the raising of the duty would have an injurious effect upon the bituminous coal trade between this province and the United States.

Word received from the collieries is to the effect that an increase, if granted, would be to the disadvantage of the trade in British Columbia.

The Sale of the Railways

THE offer of the C.P.R. for the provincial railways has been accepted. It is a good deal better than first reports indicated, and involves a payment of $25,000,000 in cash, together with the assumption by the company of the cost of the extensions now being constructed; a total estimated at $26,000,000. This price is a million and a half dollars more than that named by the Premier during the late session as the least sum which should be accepted, $23,500,000. It covers the entire estimated replacement cost of the E.D. & B.C. and Central Canada systems, and two thirds the estimated replacement cost of the A. & G.W. The loss to the province based on the estimated cost of constructing all the lines under present conditions, is thus cut down to $3,000,000.

A SALE on these terms will relieve the provincial treasury of interest payments amounting to $1,100,000 a year. The railways will immediately become taxable, and are calculated to yield $32,000 a year. The province will avoid liability for the cost of the extensions which are now being built, and for further construction and improvement of the existing lines. There is guaranteed sixty miles of new construction in the Peace River area during the next five years, which may be taken as the minimum amount that will be made should the present active settlement of the country continue.

THIS is by all odds the best offer that has been made, and better than can have been expected by any but the most sanguine. It would have been folly had the Government failed to accept it, subject, of course to the approval of the Legislature. That this approval will be given promptly can scarcely be doubted.

THE transaction fully justifies the confidence which the Legislature reposed in the Ministers in entrusting them with the handling of the negotiations for the sale of the railways, and giving them power to make a conditional acceptance of any bid which they might consider satisfactory. That the matter has been capably handled is shown by the outcome. Credit is particularly due to Premier Brownlee and Hon. Vernor W. Smith, and to those of their colleagues who stood out for a "real price" for the roads. Under the direction of Hon. Mr. Smith, the system has been made to earn a revenue beyond its operating costs, and to the improvement made in the financial showing of the system must be attributed the major credit for the excellent offer that has been obtained.

A CONDITION of the arrangement is that the Canadian National may come into the deal on equal terms with the C.P.R., assuming half the obligations and securing half the benefits. As this stipulation is made at the suggestion of Mr. E. W. Beatty, K.C., president of the C.P.R., it may be supposed that there is still a practical possibility of the roads being taken over and operated as a joint undertaking of the two transcontinentals. This condition will further recommend the sale to the approval of the public, as it is certain to make it the more acceptable to the Legislature and to parliament.

CONGRATULATIONS are due to the Government for having brought to a successful solution a railway problem of first importance and of many complications; to the people of Peace River and of the Athabasca country because one—or both—of the transcontinental railways is to become directly interested in the settlement and development of that territory; and to the taxpayers of the province in that the provincial debt is to be cut down by $25,000,000, and the treasury relieved of the annual capital charges on that sum.

TO President Beatty and the Canadian Pacific Railway Company must go the compliments of the people at large for the very satisfactory offer made for the railroads, and for the assurance that Northern Alberta will be given efficient and adequate transportation facilities in keeping with the needs of that great area, which in the next few years is destined to play a large part in the prosperity and development of Canada.

THE very satisfactory price received is a complete vindication of the stand taken by Premier Brownlee and his colleagues when dealing with past offers. The deal now consummated is a credit to Alberta and to the Canadian Pacific Railway. It marks another very forward step in the history of the province and it adds still another glorious chapter to the annals of the C.P.R. in the development of the Dominion. Both the province and the pioneer transportation company can be justly proud of the outcome of the visit made to the Peace River district by President Beatty and his colleagues on the directorate of the road. It was as a direct result of that visit a few days ago that the present very satisfactory deal was closed, and that another red letter day in the history of Alberta was marked on the calender.

Australia Waterside Workers Still Strike

CANBERRA, Australia, Sept. 21.—The strike of the waterside workers who refused to go to work last Wednesday, tying up shipping for the second time in two weeks, is getting worse hourly, Premier S. M. Bruce declared in the house of representatives today.

The transport workers' bill, introduced by the government, providing that all wharf employees must be registered, received first reading, but second reading was postponed owing to strong obstruction on the part of the Labor members.

Premier Bruce stated the bill was an attempt to help the Waterside Workers' Federation to get the members of the union back to work, and denied that it was aimed against trade unionism.

The lodge hall will be situated above the entrance and rest room portion. The work will be rushed as soon as plans and specifications are completed by the architect, Mr. Blakey, of Edmonton. The hall it is expected will fill a long felt need in the community.

Evidence that prehistoric animals of huge dimensions have roamed and fought and died along what is now the right of way of the Canadian National railway in the Kinsella vicinity has been unearthed by the finding of a large petrified bone, weighing about twenty-two pounds, and measures eight feet and three inches in length. The bone, according to those who have seen it has the appearance of being the rib of some prehistoric mammal. The discovery was made in the farm yard of F. Hajek, near the gravel pit at Kinsella. Efforts are to be made to find further pieces of what is thought to be a skeleton of immense proportions. Has another burial ground of these ancient gigantic monsters been discovered in Alberta?

With the establishment of airports in most all of the principal centres of Alberta, considerable interest has been aroused locally in the provision of some kind of airport for air service mail planes and passenger carrying planes that will, in the near future, be flying the air routes over Viking. With a hop of over 200 miles from Saskatoon and about 100 to Edmonton, Viking would be a logical place for an air service base of some kind, if only in an emergency. It is thought that if the smaller centres provide some sort of suitable landing field, properly marked, that this modern form of transportation would be established much sooner than if no interest was taken in the project in the rural centres.

ARDROSSAN, Sept. 21.—The United Workers of the United Church met at the church on Tuesday afternoon, the chief item of business being the discussion of quilt-making, by which means the members hope to add to their funds in aid of the church.

Mrs. E. Reeve entertained the members of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Anglican church at her home on Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 12.

Rev. Nelson T. Chappel, pastor of the Ardrossan United church for the past few months, is leaving this week for the Divinity School, University of Chicago, to take post graduate work. Following the Sunday morning service Mr. Hamilton Lackey, on behalf of the congregation, presented Mr. Chappel with a beautiful fountain pen and address of appreciation for the work done by him in the short time he has been in Ardrossan. His many friends wish him every success in his future career.

We are glad to learn that Mrs. W. J. Garbe, who has been ill for the past week, is again able to be up and around.

The continued fine weather is enabling threshing to proceed at top speed. The roads are kept busy with trucks hauling grain to the elevators. The wheat is grading No. 2.

Bruderheim Grain Is Mostly Cut

Exclusive to The Bulletin

BRUDERHEIM, Sept. 21.—The overcast sky of Tuesday finally developed into a drizzling rain towards evening. It continued to rain well on into the night, but ceased towards morning. On Wednesday broken rain clouds still drifted through the clear sky. The sun shone brightly and a good breeze from the west was blowing. This will soon dry the grain stooks, and in a few days threshing will start again. Threshing has progressed wonderfully, and it is estimated that over half of the grain is already threshed.

DOROTHY DIX

The Family Drudge Who Resents Being Pushed Into Freedom—Why Sweetness In a Wife Is Worth More Than Culture. Choosing Between School and Business

DEAR MISS DIX.—I am in great trouble. I am only 33, too young to be left alone with no pleasures in life. I have always lived with my sister and her husband and now they are tired of me, after nine years together, and want me to leave and go and live in a furnished room. I have practically taken all the care of their little boy since he was born. I have worked my fingers to the bone for them and I am so blue about leaving. But, though they don't treat me badly, they tell me to my face that I must go. Do you consider this fair?

DESOLATE DORIS.

Answer:

I consider that for the first time, your sister and her husband are being fair to you. Heretofore they have been most unjust to you because they have made of you nothing but an unpaid servant, but now they are going to force you to stand on your own feet and become an independent human being, and give you a chance at getting some of the good things of life for yourself.

The wrong your sister has done you consists in not having done this nine years ago. If she had, by now you would be well established in some gainful occupation, and you would be self-reliant instead of being a helpless, dependent, 33-year-old baby who doesn't know how to do anything but help around some other woman's house.

Instead of feeling aggrieved, sit down and have a real heart-to-heart session with yourself. Be honest. What have you got from these nine years in which you have helped your sister with her housework and minded her baby? Have you been contented and happy? Have you been prosperous? Have you made any money? Have you saved up anything against the future? Where have they led you?

You are bound to answer: No. Nothing. Nowhere. You have been in a blind alley, working hard for your board and clothes, and not even feeling that you earned them. They were always given grudgingly, as an act of charity. You were always the poor relation, taken in through kindness and expected to be properly grateful, no matter if you did give service as pay for your keep that was worth 10 times what it cost.

Surely there is nothing so alluring in a life like that it calls for so many tears and lamentations. Nor does the future offer you any rosy prospects that should make you yearn to stay on in your present environment. At the end of another nine years you would be no better off. You would still be the family drudge, and you would then be getting too old to make a start for yourself.

One of the most incomprehensible things in the world is the mania women have for living in homes in which they are not welcome, and with people who don't want them. They attach themselves like barnacles to some member of their family and nothing save the most drastic measures will remove them.

Why they do this, Heaven only knows. It isn't because they find happiness in the situation, because they are nearly always miserable enough and make everybody else miserable. It isn't because they are so devoted to their families that they can't be separated from them, because they nearly always fight like the Kilkenny cats. It isn't because it is a soft berth, because they generally have to work like slaves, and are more put upon than any hired servant would stand for.

But they have some sort of a horror complex of loneliness that makes them feel that they couldn't endure to go off on their own, and so they inflict themselves upon their unwilling children or brothers and sisters or aunts or uncles or cousins, and eat the bitter bread of dependence and learn how steep are another's stairs, instead of earning their own angel's food and having their own independent homes in the outside world.

All of us know plenty of mothers and old-maid sisters and aunts who would be treated like queens and cherished as priceless jewels, and paid fat salaries if they gave the skill and the faithfulness in other people's kitchens and nurseries that they do in their sons' or daughters' or relatives' for nothing. And who are not only not paid for their work but who are always made to feel that they are burdens. "You know we have to take care of mother, or Aunt Susan, or Cousin Sally." Haven't you heard it many and many a time?

So, Desolate Doris, cheer up. Go to work and learn to do something well enough to command a good salary. Make your own independent life. Don't be a hanger-on of your sister's. Stand on your own feet. That is the only way any self-respecting human being can be happy.

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX.—I am a college graduate, have a good job and excellent prospects. There are two girls. The first is well educated, well bred, excellent background, but reserved and unemotional to a marked degree. The second is sweet and unsophisticated, very lovable and companionable, not as well educated, and with no background whatever.

I should be proud to introduce the first girl to my friends. I should always be afraid of the second girl's grammar. The first would not allow me to smoke my pipe in the house. The second would bring me my slippers and coddle me.

Judy O'Grady or the Colonel's Lady, which shall it be? BEAU.

Answer:

Well, if I were a man, it would be Judy for me, because you can correct a wife's grammar, but you cannot warm up a cold heart. Also I should reflect that there would be comparatively few occasions upon which I would be exhibiting my wife to my friends, but that I would have to live with her day after day, and so I would rather have one who was pleasant to get along with than one who was a show piece.

Perhaps it is good for a man's immortal soul to marry a woman who chastens him and humbles his spirit, and who will not let him smoke in the house, nor indulge himself in any of his innocent little vices, and who keeps him always on his tiptoes trying to live up to the regulations that she lays down for his conduct. But it must be confessed that this is wearing on the constitution, and that the men who have these superior wives generally stay at home as little as possible, and find consolation in the society of some low-browed woman who makes a fuss over them and thinks that everything they do is just right because they do it.

After all, what makes the man's happiness in marriage is not his wife's attainments, but her disposition. Few men desire to discuss high finance or the Einstein theory at home. They get enough of that in the outside world, and when they come in at night, tired and worn, what they want is a cheerful, loving, warm-hearted woman who will pet them and coddle them and let them do as they please. I have never yet known a happy home presided over by a reserved woman or an icicle.

Toronto Chief Will Stamp Out Bettors

TORONTO, Sept., 21.—Brigadier-General D. C. Draper, chief of Toronto police, in an interview here stated that it is his intention to stamp out the betting agencies in Toronto which he said are being operated on an extensive scale among clerks and other employes of Toronto firms. He urges the prohibition of racing odds and racing information and the imposition sentences and the lash on those operating handbooks.

KEEP UP THE FORCE

In the light of what has been said at the investigation in reference to the undermanning of the Edmonton fire brigade, it is not reassuring to learn that the force is to be further reduced by dropping nine men for a couple of months. That this is the established practice at this time of year will not off-set the additional risk thus imposed upon homes and business premises. The city commissioners and city council would do well to reconsider the matter in view of present day conditions and keep the force at least up to normal strength. Edmonton is a growing city, with growing responsibilities, and the arrangements of former years will have to be modified to suit the changed circumstances.

A PREDICTION CAMPAIGN

It is an off day when the critics cannot sight a new sign of the impending collapse of the Baldwin government. From their standpoint the Premier of Great Britain moves through an uninterrupted succession of cabinet crises. When he is not supposed to be looking for a way to get rid of Winston Churchill it is alleged that he is under the immediate necessity of jettisoning Joynson Hicks or of "ditching" half the ministry. Perhaps a government in Great Britain can be wished out of office in that manner. If so the mind of the old country elector reacts differently than that of the Canadian voter. No party has ever yet succeeded in predicting its way into power in Canada. Perhaps in Britain, as in the Dominion, it will be found that an opposition gets into office when it gives the man on the street cause to think that there is some definite reason why he should put it there.

THE ROOT OF THE MATTER

Behind all the controversy that is raging about the question of immigration there lies one fact which is not getting the direct attention that it deserves. Too large a proportion of the people who come to Canada to settle do not stay "settled". A pretty heavy percentage of the migrants lose the enthusiasm for farming before they reach a farm. Another large percentage develop an early desire to get off the land stronger than the impulse which took them on it. If the hundreds of thousands of men who have come to Canada since 1900 with the declared or presumed intention of farming had really gone on farms, and stayed on them, there would be little call now for more people to bring idle land into use. That is a basic fact in regard to immigration, and upon it we shall have to build any sort of policy that is to meet the case. If we cannot get people who will go on land and stay there our immigration effort is largely a waste of money.

HIGHWAY EXTENSION

Good progress is reported in carrying out the program for the construction of permanent highways through southern Alberta. By the close of this season, it is stated, there will be a gravelled road all the way from the international boundary to Edmonton, with an intersecting highway from Stirling through Lethbridge and Macleod to the Crow's Nest Pass country. The highway from Calgary to Banff is already gravelled. The completion of this years' undertakings will therefore see the needs of southern Alberta fairly well met in respect to the accommodation of tourists from the United States. The "gate" will have been opened to this traffic and the tourists will next summer be able to get to the mountain parks by all-weather roads from Macleod and Calgary.

Next year, it is to be expected, more attention will be given to the extension of the highway system through central and northern Alberta. The close of this season will find Edmonton the "jumping off place" so far as the United States motor tourist is concerned. But Edmonton is a hundred miles south of the central point in the province. Before the visitor can be invited to "see Alberta by auto" the permanent highway system must be built into Peace River and westward to Jasper Park. Until that is done Alberta cannot appeal as strongly as it should to the ever-increasing multitude of wanderers who take to the road in the United States in holiday-time, nor get the full benefit from the money that has already been spent in building highways in the southern districts, largely to accommodate this traffic.

The Test of Golf

By EDGAR A. GUEST

A coward can whistle and sing along
When his drives are straight and his irons long.
And the awkwardest duffer can wear a grin
The day that his putts are dropping in.
But golf is queer, as is often said,
And the best of players will lift his head,
And the real test of your soul, my lad,
Is how do you act when your game is bad?

Work as you will, it is all the same,
There will come the day when you're off your game,
When you cannot drive as you know you should,
And the best of your shots is far from good.
Well, in times like that is your courage stout?
Do you fling your club when a putt stays out?
Can you say to me as your score you tell,
My game was bad but I played it well?

There is more to game than the scores you make
And the balls you win and the cups you take.
The fellow who wins can always smile,
But look them over, the rank and file,
And the sturdiest souls on the links you tread
Aren't the boys who always come out ahead,
But the ones who lose when they know they must
And still stay manly and clean and just.

They take the loss with its bitter sting
And still hold fast to the finer thing,
The sense of fairness and will to be
Fit for a good man's company.
They have lost the touch which success requires
But not the joy which the game inspires.
They may fail as golfers again and again,
But no one shall say that they failed as men.

Earning

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Sometimes you can make money by cheating and you can get a reputation by lying and bluff, but as a rule when you want love or genuine respect you must earn it.

No one but a mother can love a person who is in no degree loveable or have confidence in a person who has no moral character.

The last people you can put anything over with are your wife and your children. Those who live every day with a person find out what sort of a man he is without listening to what he says. With them the saying of Emerson goes, "What you are thunders so loud that I cannot hear what you say."

When a man clears his throat and says to the assembled family:

"When I was sixteen I thought my father didn't know anything; when I was thirty I thought he knew a little; now I know that he knew a great deal."

He has usually arrived at the age when he has skeptical sixteen-year-olds of his own.

He appreciates what his father was up against. He is being found out. So he has to carry on the bluff.

One of the wisest sentences in a wise book is Dorsey's line in "Why We Behave Like Human Beings":

"The child does not love his parents because they are parents, but because they are lovable."

They have to earn love. And they have to keep it in a constant state of repair. It isn't a divine right; it is something that has to be bought and paid for.

They also have to earn respect for their intelligence.

Parents can't get something for nothing for very long.

Bluffing the kids has been one of the big causes of mental stagnation in middle life.

If parents know they have to demonstrate and make good in the eyes of their children instead of bluffing them, they keep abreast of things.

In a little village bicycle shop in Italy a boy and his father did the same work. The father would repair a pedal and then the boy would do it after him. He was learning his father's trade.

A traveller noticing that the boy's pedal was less slipshod and better finished than the father's, told him so.

"O, no, no, no, that was done by father," was the answer. The idea being that father could do no wrong.

A little of that spirit would probably be appreciated by the hard pressed papa, but it leads to self-satisfaction and non-advance in an elder generation.

In the Old World and in older times: "Honor thy Father and Mother" was interpreted to include accepting their mental abilities as approaching infallibility.

That idea seems wholly eradicated from the present younger generation.

However the elders may long for its return, it is probably true that the present attitude rather than the older will keep them on their toes trying to earn the respect they once obtained without a struggle.

Do You Remember?

FORTY YEARS AGO

From the Edmonton Bulletin, Saturday, September 15th, 1888.

The U.S. gunboat Yantic has been sent to the Canadian fishing grounds.

At a meeting of the directors of the Edmonton agricultural society the following resolution was passed, to be submitted to Sir John A. Macdonald and Commissioner Herchmer: "The directors of this society do not consider that the farmers of this district have received justice at the hands of the Government in the matter of the letting of hay and beef contracts for the North West Mounted Police, and would humbly ask the Government to hold an investigation into the manner in which these contracts have of late years been let. In the event of such investigation being thoroughly made the directors of this society feel confident the Government will find that the farmers have received a gross injustice at the hands of the Government officials of this district."

The Free Press has withdrawn its support from the Greenway administration and is attacking it savagely on its railway policy, and also personally the premier and the attorney general. The Sun supports the Government and the contract. The Call appears to be against everybody and everything.

Wheat in central Dakota is yielding from 12 to 21 bushels an acre this season. Hot winds in July shrivelled the kernel. The yield is considered fair for that section.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Question: W. K. F. writes: "My doctor says my trouble is due to hypererythrocythemia, but he also tells me there is nothing to be done to cure it as the cause is not known. I hope you can offer me some suggestions and encouragement about a cure."

Answer: The long-sounding name given your trouble is an attempt to describe a condition which actually exists in certain patients where there is an increase in the number of red blood cells over the normal. My researches have shown that such an extra amount of red cells is produced through a definite irritation of the nervous system, including the brain and spinal cord. Such irritation is apparently caused by some simple toxemia, as it can be very easily cured. Out of many cases treated I have never seen one that did not respond very quickly to a fast of a few days. Have your blood count taken at some responsible laboratory, then stop all food for at least five days, except fruit juice and water, and then have another blood count made. You will find the red cells reduced to normal or very closely to it. If not quite normal after the five days' fast, continue the fast for a few days more. A correct diet afterwards will prevent any recurrence of the toxemia which is apparently responsible.

Editor Bulletin:—

THE DRUNKEN DRIVER

I read with much appreciation your editorial of today "Safety First," in which you state that the increasing court records of convictions of citizens for driving cars while intoxicated, demands consideration of the government. Your efforts to help solve a problem will be much appreciated, but I feel that prevention is better than cure. Yes, I am with you on cancellation of the right to drive a car when a man has been found in charge of an auto while drunk, but it is after the terrible damage is done that the culprit gets in the hands of the police. We must again commence to consider stopping him getting the liquor that is the cause of the accident. We must accept more and more the scientists decision that alcohol is a narcotic drug and should not be used at all as a beverage. Alcohol is a deceiver. Hundreds of citizens are driving cars every day who if asked if they were under the influence of alcohol would indignantly deny the assertion. Just when intoxication starts is the bone of contention. Science tells us that the slightest amount of alcohol, even the small quantity contained in one glass of beer, interferes with a man's efficiency, and particularly with his good judgement. To punish a man after he has committed the crime of driving a car while intoxicated seems to me to be putting the cart before the horse. I would suggest that a special set of questions would be compiled to ask of every drunken driver, or driver who is the cause of an accident. Have you been drinking recently? Where have you spent the last few hours? Let the authorities trace up the cause of the man's negligence. Let our motto be "Prevention as well as cure."

Planetary Influences on This Day for ALL

Care is necessary in all financial matters, especially in speculation. Favorable for literary work.

For Those Whose Birthday Is Today

If you were born on September 21 you may have to labor hard for most of your attainments, but you may be entrusted with important projects and should at some time assert yourself. This will develop your natural temperament and make life easier for you. Your best efforts would be expended in any work dealing with literature, history or the teaching of anthropology, or as antiquarian, politician or lawyer. The most favorable periods for attempting anything of an important nature where beneficial results are required are the winter of 1930, the year of 1931, the year of 1932 and the year of 1933.

Dr. Edmund Gosse, Born September 21, 1849

An example of a person born on September 21 is Dr. Edmund Gosse, celebrated English author and critic whose horoscope indicates an aspiring, critical mind, domineering and analytical. There is unusual ability for the use of words and a great desire for political life, which, however, was never manifested and must have caused inhibition.

Other persons born on this date are H. G. Wells, English novelist; Louis Bonaparte, King of Belgium, and Girolamo Savonarola, Italian political reformer who overthrew the Medici.

Planetary Conditions for Tomorrow, September 22

Unfavorable for journeys or important business interests.

A motor car passed along Knightsbridge, London, the other day, carrying a cinema operator, who was taking scenes of the traffic in general. The conductor of an omnibus standing on his platform was unmistakably included in the film, and received the congratulations of a pasing driver.

"It's no good, Ernest," shouted the conductor, "they'll have to take me again. I left all my sex-appeal at home."

Keeping Mentally Fit

By Joseph Jastrow, A.B., A.M., Ph.D., LL.D.

Professor of Psychology, University of Wisconsin, 1888 to 1917; now professor emeritus; lecturer in the New School for Social Research, New York City; past president of the American Psychological Association

THAT ARTISTIC TEMPERAMENT

Like many other matters in the affairs of mind, it's real and it's exaggerated. Everybody has some kind of a temperament, for that word refers to the general level and pattern of your emotional life. In some persons the emotional waters are pretty nearly always calm; occasionally little ripples make a momentary flurry and once in a great while there may be a storm, not much of a one at that.

Now, the theory of temperament is that you are that way because you're built that way; and to that I firmly adhere. You can no more change your temperament than the leopard its spots, but you can do much to curb and check and control and direct the complicated mass of impulses which your temperament may provoke in you.

To return: that calm, easy-going, non-excitable type of idividual is presumably the most common type of temperament, at least among the North European, including the British and Scandinavian and Dutch and North German races, prominent in the make-up of the early settlers of America. Temperament as hereditary is in part racial.

But America is a melting pot of temperaments as well as of races; so statistically the South European and semi-Oriental elements (Italian, Greek and Jewish in large proportion) may contribute as much and more to the composite. The Slavic tend toward the stolid, not easily moved, yet violent when aroused. These tendencies likewise are real, but easily exaggerated as to their dominance; for doubtless all races contain individuals of all temperaments, but the predominant type is none the less distinctive.

So once more, speaking generally and loosely, most persons are not very pronounced in their mental-emotional make-up. They are not strongly of any one temperament; they are rather neutral in their temperamental color scheme. Similarly they haven't any highly specialized talents, but are fairly good at a fair number of rather simple, ordinary aptitudes. They form the common lot, the ordinary run. It is well that this is so; they furnish the background of stability of the Nation. When this temperament is marked it becomes not neutral but negative and is called phlegmatic.

Opposed to it was the temperament prone to anger and violence which for no reason that means much any longer was called choleric. The names of the other two anciently recognized temperaments are still wider of the mark, for they were named according to the type of disposition, whether hopeful and cheerful (sanguine) or gloomy and depressed (melancholic). We do better to recognize these as the persons of excitable temperament, in modern times called nervous. They are of many varieties, and when they are markedly temperamental they compose in one of their settings the artistic temperament, real enough, but easily exaggerated.

An important clue to temperament is its exaggeration in the abnormalities. Of these hysteria is the most instructive. Hysteria is the name of a mental emotional disorder as well as of a temperament in which that disorder readily develops. We must become used to the notion that we mean nothing very serious when we call people temperamentally hysterical. Many of the most attractive and useful members of the race are so.

They give way to emotion easily, feel deeply and strongly and live largely on the profoundly stirring emotions of life. They are intense, also a little unstable, a little impulsive, a little unreliable and irregular and difficult, and some of them far more than a little.

Wagner, a notable example of the artistic temperament, relates that he allowed every wave of emotion free play to take possession of him as it would. It is inevitable that such sensitive persons should be easily irritated, easily hurt in their feelings and sensibilities. The ugly gives them a sharp pain, and when things go wrong they are upset, and being so delicately poised, it doesn't take much to upset them. Yet of such stuff are many artists made; they must accept the strengths as well as the weaknesses of their temperament.

We can't have creative art without deep feeling, and the price paid for it is the tendency to emotional upset.

The too free indulgence in temperament isn't good for anybody, artist or not. Many who fall back on the excuse of an artistic temperament are far more victims of an undisciplined temperament than artists. There are any number of well-poised artists who have themselves well in hand and accept their responsibilities as human beings, like the rest of us. Unquestionably temperamental persons are more difficult to educate; they respond less readily to routine; they are full of strong impulses not easily controlled. They have the same problem that we all have, to direct our temperament toward mental fitness.

It won't do to confine the artistic temperament too closely but a life of unrestrained emotion is a life of dissipation. Respect the artistic temperament whether you have it or not; but if you have it, remember that you will do more with it if you train it in the ways of mental fitness.

Robert Quillen Says:—

In a sweet green pasture where heavy plow horses rested from their labors a colt with heavy bones and heavy feet stood near a line fence and gazed with longing eyes at a distant race track.

An old horse who stood near observed the colt's look and manner of discontent and asked for an explanation.

"I hate this life and this pasture," said the colt. "All of you are heavy and slow and dull, and you never do a thing but plow. Over there on the race track colts no better than I are trained to win races, and they are beautiful, dainty creatures that prance and flash in the sun. I want to be like them. I want to be trained as a racer."

"My son," said the old horse, "plowing is just as necessary and just as honorable as racing. You are descended from a long and useful line, and the blood in you is thoroughbred. Your ancestors did good work and you will do good work in your turn. Quit your foolish dreaming."

But the colt could not be content in the pasture, and day after day it searched for a way out. At last it found a gap in the fence and an hour later it had begun the great adventure. It was on the race track—in the midst of the training school that developed the world's fastest horses.

A young jockey who liked his fun fetched saddle and bridle, and the colt trembled with delight. Soon he was lumbering around the track and his cup of happiness was filled to the brim.

But joy is brief in an imperfect world, and within an hour the Master came and led the wanderer home.

"When shall I begin to run races?" asked the colt.

"Never," said the Master.

"But I have been to college," the colt persisted. "And that training school turns out nearly all of the famous racers."

"So it does," said the Master, kindly; "but it merely develops their natural abilities. They are born to race, else it wouldn't be worth while to train them. Training will add a little to natural speed, but racing colts are fast before they see a track."

"And I am not fast?" asked the colt.

"You are not," said the Master; "you are slow, and that is well, for plowing is slow work. Tomorrow I shall put you in harness and start you on the job for which a wise Nature designed you."

LABOR'S DISTRESS

Quebec Evenement (Cons.): (Labour is not in favor of encouraging immigration). If one looks into the situation in towns like Toronto and Montreal, it becomes clear that the stranger, driven by hunger, offers his services at starvation wages. Some employers extract profit from their distress, but the Canadian workman suffers unjustly. This system aggravates the grievances of our own people, while it pushes his foreign competitor into Communist organizations. One only has to read the labour papers of the English-speaking towns to see a revolutionary menace growling there.

APPLE GROWERS AND EATERS

Victoria Daily Times: Trouble began this year when apples from the United States invaded the prairie market and undersold the product of the Okanagan. British Columbia producers are demanding the re-imposition of the dumping duty in order to make it more difficult for the American apple to encroach upon own preserves. The authorities at Ottawa—for it is purely a federal matter—are not inclined to enforce regulations which would advance the price of applies in the prairie provinces. The people of the prairie provinces have made it clear that they strenuously object to any such interference on the part of the dominion government. They contend that if they can purchase American apples cheaper than they can purchase British Columbia applies, they should be permitted to do so without question. The great majority of our citizens do their business that way.

The apple growers of the Okanagan will have to face hard and fast facts and recognize that there is no economic formula in existence which can compel the two and one-half millions in the prairie provinces to buy and eat British Columbia applies if they do not desire to do so. What is more to the point, it can be predicted that if any form of implied coercion shall be resorted to, those people will go without applies altogether rather than tolerate the course of procedure which the dominion government is being importuned to take.

"GET IT AT WOODWARD'S"

C.P.R. NOW INVADING RICH LAND

C.N.R. Has Usually Been First in Northern Territories

By Staff Correspondent
Exclusive to the Bulletin

OTTAWA, Sept. 21.—The Canadian Pacific Railway's offer for the Edmonton, Dunvegan and British Columbia railway and other Alberta railways has been made, it is believed in Ottawa, with some knowledge on the part of the Canadian National. Last winter there were negotiations under way, both railways finally making a joint offer in order to eliminate competition price. The deal did not materialize but remained with the door open for future negotiations.

So far as the Canadian National is concerned the problem is one which must be also considered by the minister of railways, as it affects public policy. Hon. Charles Dunning, however, is in Europe attending the League of Nations, while Major Graham Bell, the deputy minister who took part in the original negotiations, is in Western Canada making an inspection of the Hudson Bay railway and the northern Manitoba railway situation for the Canadian National. Sir Henry Thornton is also in Europe. It is believed that the Canadian National officials at Montral have been in cable communication with both Mr. Dunning and Sir Henry, but departmental officials in Ottawa profess no knowledge of the situation.

C.P. Invades North

There is a specific reference in the Alberta announcement that the Canadian National shall have the right to participate. The National, however is chiefly interested in that it permits the Canadian Pacific to invade the northern territory which in all four western provinces has been hitherto Canadian National territory. It is known that the Canadian Pacific is very keen on changing its direction. It built its original western lines over the southern prairies where construction was simple and cheap and where there was an immediate return of valuable freight in transporting grain.

The north, however, has become the most valuable railway territory. Lack of water in the southern areas has made the freight from wheat annually problematical, where as the northern farmer never has a crop failure and mixed farming is in vogue to a large extent.

Develop Mines

Most important, however, is the mining development which is beginning to yield heavy and highly profitable freight. Northern Manitoba is the first to show development and the Canadian National is first in the field through the Hudson Bay railway which will have branches into the mining areas.

The Canadian Pacific is now making plans to penetrate northern Manitoba and Saskatchewan, it has a line running north through Melfort and has recently let the contract for a million dollar bridge over the Carrot river. It is not believed the C.P.R. would spend that much on a bridge into a problematical agricultural country and that while ostensibly it will turn West over the Carrot river towards Prince Albert, this road can be tapped by branches running into the Saskatchewan and Manitoba the Saskatchewan and Manitoba wards Hudson Bay. It is not beyond expectations that the company will seek running rights over the Hudson Bay railway within a few years.

C. N. To Have Time

As the agreement between the C.P.R. and the Alberta Government needs the ratification of parliament and of the provincial legislature, there will be ample time after the return of the Prime Minister, Hon Mr. Dunning and Sir Henry Thornton, from Europe for the National to signify its intention to participate. In any event no action would be taken without a debate in parliament as the Canadian National cannot entail the huge expenditure necessary without the direct sanction of parliament and the voting of the money in estimates.

Visitor Is Amazed at Land Value

REGINA, Sask., Sept. 21—"The value of your city lots absolutely amazes me," said Sir Robert Saunders, former minister of agriculture in Great Britain, speaking at a dinner given here last night to delegates of the empire parliamentary association.

"Compare them with London," Sir Robert added. "It is a fact that you can purchase a lot within a four-mile radius of London at less than half what you can buy residential lots for in Edmonton, Vancouver, Victoria, or Saskatoon, to say nothing of Regina."

SAYS GIRL IN PRISON NOT GUILTY

CALGARY, Sept. 21.—Leaving a note addressed to Magistrate Shaw, of Vancouver, stating that a girl named Billie Murphy, whom the judge had sent to prison for six months at Vancouver on September 10, was not guilty of the offence charged, T. M. Hudson, 45, of Vancouver, shot himself through the left temple with a .32 calibre automatic revolver at 2:15 o'clock Thursday afternoon and died half an hour later in the General hospital.

Hudson had apparently been over-come with remorse at the predicament of his girl acquaintance in the coast city, and he asked the judge to accept the statement as a death bed confession.

Hudson also left several other letters to persons in Vancouver.

Defence Witness

VANCOUVER, B.C., Sept. 21.—T. M. Frank Hudson of Vancouver, who shot himself fatally in Calgary Thursday, is stated to have left his rooming house here recently following the sentencing of Mrs. R. J. "Billie" Murphy to six months imprisonment on a charge of theft of a check of $87.

Police state that Hudson was a defence witness for the woman. He left his job as a bar tender in a local beer parlor about a month ago.

Before committing suicide today Hudson left a note addressed to Magistrate Shaw of Vancouver, stating that Mrs. Murphy was not guilty of the offence charged.

that Kitchener set out on his last ill-fated voyage.

The late millionaire was a Liberal member of parliament from 1875 to 1885 and was an enthusiastic supporter of Gladstone in foreign policies but broke with him on the question of Irish home rule. When Ralli contested Newcastle as a Liberal-Unionist he was defeated by John Morley.

He was a fascinating conversationalist and delighted in the company of his sister's daughter, Lady Byng, who shared his love of literature and who, as Evelyn Moreton, to give her her name before she married the great soldier, was a novelist of distinction.

Ralli was blind for five years before his death, during which time Lady Byng was often with her uncle, visiting with him at Brighton Place, of which he was very fond.

CHINESE ARMY QUITS

SHANGHAI, China, Sept. 21.—Advices from Mukden, Manchuria, today stated that the remnants of the Shantung-Chihli (northern) army have surrendered to General Yang-Yu-Ting, Manchurian commander. The northerners surrendered near Anshan, on the Tientsin-Mukden railway, after serious fighting, in which the Manchurian wounded alone totalled at least 3,000.

MORE ABOUT
NORTHCOTT

They are deep blue, but possess a fixed, staring quality, as if their owner was in a thrall.

Stories Amuse Him

"Well, I suppose you are surprised not to find me armed to the teeth, as they said about poor little mother," he remarked with a trace of bitterness. "Reading all these stories about myself has certainly given me a lot of amusement."

Then he continued with his denial of the charges and the description of his flight. Northcott kept up a running fire of conversation on his way to Vancouver and took great delight in telling train officials how he had eluded capture several times.

On Monday after his trail was lost at the Pendrell street rooming house in Vancouver he drove to Blaine, Wash., intending to recover his automobile, which was in the hands of customs authorities there. He used a "big blue car" on this trip, he said, but according to Colonel H. G. MacMullen, head of the British Columbia police, he was driving a Ford. Twice on Monday night while he was believed to be still in Vancouver he crossed and recrossed the international boundary at Blaine.

Reached U. S. Side

On the first occasion, he said, after reaching the United States side he found himself fourth or fifth in a line of automobiles. He noticed other motorists being searched and their effects examined. Realizing that inspection of his papers or bag in the automobile would reveal his identity he felt that capture was imminent, but luck and his own resourcefulness saved him. He noticed a woman accompanied by two children, struggling with several suitcases. Alighting from his car he hurried to assist her and while he was thus engaged the customs and immigration men missed him. Northcott chuckled at the memory of the incident.

For a reason he did not divulge he turned back to the Canadian side after his narrow escape but again entered the United States, a short time later. Again he felt it wiser to return to Canada. Early Tuesday the hunted man and his mother were driving north of Vancouver. They reached Lillooet, sped through Marble Canyon, passed Ashcroft, and reached Spence's Bridge Tuesday afternoon.

Had "Wild Ride"

As told by Northcott this was a wild ride. "I was not accustomed to the car," he said, "and it had no brakes. Descending hills I put it in reverse, but that did not do much good either. All the time my baggage, plainly marked with my initials, was in the car." At Spence's Bridge he put his mother on the train to Calgary and drove to a point near Princeton. He left the automobile on the track five miles out of town and hid his bag in the bush. From Princeton he took a train to Summerland and there embarked on the steamship Sicamous, which he thought was bound for Sicamous. This last "leg" of his trip led him into the hands of the police.

Northcott discoursed on a variety of subjects. He had decided views on newspapers. "The newspapers, especially those in the south," he said, "convict a man before he comes to trial. I do not think there should be so much publicity about crimes before the man charged with them comes to court. I don't blame the newspapers so much. They are in a competitive business. But I do blame the administration that permits the practice."

Hickman "Got His"

The Hickman case was cited to him an example of his contention.

"Oh, that was different," he said. "Hickman deserved all he got."

Gazing through the car window at the fertile Fraser Valley, he said: "This country is beautiful with fruit trees." He launched into a comparison of British Columbia and California describing in detail the development of Los Angeles.

Northcott had praise for his captors. "I wish you would say," he requested, "that the British Columbia police have treated me wonderfully. I have neither been grilled nor questioned. Everything possible was done by them to make me comfortable."

Annoyed by Spectators

All along the route Northcott maintained his casual composure, evidenced interest in newspaper accounts of his case, and was annoyed only when subjected to too much attention by spectators on way station platforms.

Mrs. Clark Found

CALGARY, Sept. 21.—Mrs. Winnifred Clark, daughter of Mrs. Louisa Northcott, wanted in Riverside, Calif. on several charges of murder, arrived in Calgary at 1:30 o'clock, Friday morning and called at city police headquarters Friday noon to see her mother.

Mrs. Clark is not under arrest. No charge has been preferred against her and she is registered at a local hotel.

She declines to discuss the case and stated that she merely wanted to be near her mother in her trouble.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Sept 21—Declaring that he has been "framed" and that he will fight extradition to the United States, Gordon Stuart Northcott, charged with murdering several young boys on his father's farm at Riverside, Cal., was locked in a cell in Oakalla prison here Thursday night. Northcott was captured at Vernon, B.C., yesterday and was brought to Vancouver Thursday night by the provincial police.

Prison officials declared that if the youth carries out his threat to fight extradition, it probably would be a month before he could be sent south if the California authorities were successful in the case.

At the Oakalla prison Northcott readily admitted his identity. He had $80 on his person when searched at the jail.

Not Concerned

"Northcott does not appear in the least concerned," one of his armed escorts declared. "The youth is possessed of absolute sangfroid. There is no twitching of the hands, no restless movement of the eyes, nothing to suggest that he has anything to worry about. But he reads the newspapers avidly and comments on them. He seems especially interested in accounts of his flight from Vancouver. The Los Angeles dispatches he characterizes as 'a frame up.'"

Northcott had very little to say following his arrest at Vernon, the police said. His only conversation between Kamloops and Vancouver amounted to "This is right," or "This is wrong," as he eagerly read through newspapers piled on the seat in front of him.

Talked Freely

Before the party left Kamloops on Thursday morning, Col. H. McMullin, head of the British Columbia provincial police, asserted Northcott talked freely about his movements between Spence's Bridge and Okanagan Landing.

The fugitive insisted he drove from Spence's Bridge to Princeton, after putting his mother on a train for Calgary, left his car at Princeton, took a train to West Summerland and at West Summerland boarded a boat which was, he thought, bound for Sicamous.

Alex. Watson, purser of the boat became suspicious of the youth when he tendered a $100 United States note in payment for a cabin and communicated with provincial police before the vessel sailed.

Constable Green met the boat at Okanagan Landing. The purser told him the suspect was still in his cabin and the officer was about to enter when Northcott stepped out.

When questioned Northcott gave his name as Black (the same name used by his mother when she was arrested at Calgary yesterday afternoon and refused to make any statement).

Later he admitted he was Northcott as did his mother in the Alberta city.

Admits Identity

CALGARY, Sept. 21.—The woman held by city police Thursday admitted her identity as Mrs. Sarah Louisa Northcott wanted at Riverside, Cal., in connection with five murders on the "murder farm."

After declaring for two days that she was Mrs. J. Black, a widow and without children, Mrs. Northcott was shown a picture of her son, told of his arrest and then she quietly said "I am Mrs. Northcott."

She admitted her identity to detective sergeant Joe Carruthers and asked as to the welfare of her son, Gordon Stuart Northcott, now at Vancouver in custody of police and accused slayer of boys at the "murder farm."

Police authorities declared that Mrs. Northcott would be held in custody and that United States police authorities would be communicated with immediately.

Positive identification of the woman taken from the number 4 eastbound train Wednesday afternoon was made previous to her own statement when a copy of a Vancouver newspaper carrying a large picture of the murder suspect was received in Calgary and after glancing at it for a brief moment, both Chief of Police David Ritchie and Detective Sergeant Carruthers stated that the picture in the newspaper was that of the woman now resting in a cell at city police headquarters.

Knowledge that her son was in the custody of police at Vancouver and might need her assistance, was responsible for the breaking down of the woman's reserve. For hours she denied that she was Mrs. Northcott and insisted that she had never heard of the family and knew nothing about the case.

Prepare Papers

RIVERSIDE, Cal., Sept. 21.—While Riverside county officials Thursday prepared papers for the extradition from Canada of Gordon Stuart Northcott, named in a murder complaint as the slayer of young boys on his Riverside county chicken ranch, investigators who have dug up a collection of fragmentary bones identified as those of humans, marked time pending further developments from the north.

County sheriff Clem Sweeters, who had directed the pick and shovel search for human remains at the Northcott ranch, made preparations to leave for Vancouver. Efforts were being made to arrange for aeroplane transportation to expedite his trip to Canada, but definite decision had not been made as to its feasibility. He will carry the necessary papers to return Northcott and his mother, Mrs. Louisa Northcott to the scene of their alleged orgy of crime.

Fear For Sister

REGINA, Sept. 21.—Fears are expressed today for the safety of Mrs. Winnifred Clark, who was the instigator of the investigation which was climaxed by the arrest of her brother Stewart Northcott, for the Los Angeles police on a murder warrant. A search for her in Vancouver has so far been unavailing.

E. Eugene Herbert, United States vice-consul here, who worked with Mrs. Clark to bring about the release of Sanford Clark from Northcott's clutches, with startling results, fears for the safety of the Saskatoon woman during the past five days at the Pacific coast.

Mrs. Clark openly feared violence following the revelations. She asked for police protection in Saskatoon Thursday, but later cancelled the request. Mrs. Clark left Saskatoon on Thursday evening for the coast with the Northcotts, both of whom are thought to have been arrested Wednesday on murder warrants.

In almost daily correspondence with Mrs. Clark while she remained in Saskatoon, prior to the issuance of the discovery of the murders on the California ranch, vice-consul Herbert learned of the fear in which Mrs. Clark lived.

relations between the City of Edmonton telephone system and the Alberta government telephone system.

"We are forced to conclude from your letter that no purpose would be served in pursuing further the question of purchasing the city system and we have accordingly made a further examination of our position with regard to the service that we are providing for your system. As a result of our investigations and from opinions taken, we are satisfied that the present situation should not be allowed to continue longer in fairness to our subscribers, but that we should receive from the city system reasonable and adequate compensation for the service provided.

Before taking any steps to remedy this unsatisfactory condition, we have thought it best to ascertain the views of the city with regard to the submission of our differences to a regulatory commission, a course which we feel is not only fair and reasonable to both parties, but the one which will bring about the best possible solution of those differences and one which you will recall we suggested in our letter of March 5 last.

"Whatever the views of the city with regard to our suggestion to arbitrate, and whether they accept or reject our proposal, we would ask that you communicate with us at the earliest possible moment."

Situation Unique

R. Bruce Baxter, deputy minister of telephones and general manager of the government system, when asked regarding the situation, said that there is a situation in this city which is unique in the entire field of Canadian and United States telephone operation and which does not properly fit into the scheme of providing telephone service in this province. This is the one city in Alberta where the telephone system is not owned and operated by the provincial government. The system as operated now is physically part of the provincial scheme and enjoyed the same facilities as Calgary, Lethbridge, Medicine Hat and every one of the 277 exchanges operated by the Alberta government system. The logical solution of the problem, he said, will be for the provincial system to purchase and operate the city system, thereby making it possible to develop and fit the local plant into the general scheme.

The scope of telephone service was widening rapidly and this tended to make it more difficult to operate any isolated system in the general scheme. It is impractical, he said, to operate the telephone service throughout the province by permitting each municipality to own its own system. The result would be chaos in the service. Development would not be undertaken to reach smaller points and the result would be little or no service in many sections now being reached by the larger systems.

"With this in mind," said Mr. Baxter, "we made the City of Edmonton an offer for its telephone system which not only returned the investment but provided a very substantial sum of money in addition thereto. The city officials have advised us that they do not wish to sell the system, therefore, we are in a position of having this isolated unit connected with the general telephone system in the province and making no contribution toward development or any payment for service received. This places our own subscribers in other cities and towns at a disadvantage. They are being called upon to pay for the service we are furnishing to Edmonton without charge. Our only remedy is to have Edmonton's system make reasonable compensation for this service."

No mention has been made by the government of expropriation as it is apparently believed an understanding can be reached by arbitration. Should this fail there are two other courses open to the government, neither of which has been announced even as a possibility, to establish a connecting charge which is estimated to be about $100,000 a year or to discontinue service entirely for the city system leaving it an isolated unit.

It is likely the matter will be brought to the attention of the city council at its next meeting.

promised to eat if this were done. The jacket was taken off and the patient still refused to eat, and Scott struck and kicked him. Witness then left the room and reported the matter to proper officials later in the day.

Dr. Fitzpatrick, of the hospital, testified that on Wednesday, Sept 12, patient Dr. Hobbs seemed in good physical condition, and when he examined him the next day he appeared to be suffering from great shock and collapse and appeared to be getting worse steadily. He was bruised on the chest and abdomen and appeared to be in great pain.

A. Beaumont, of Ponoka, appearing as counsel for Scott, questioned Dr. Fitzpatrick at great length on the possibility that Dr. Hobbs had pneumonia before the alleged assault without anyone knowing it. Dr. Fitzpatrick said it was possible that the patient did have pneumonia before that time, as he was running around the wards in a scantily clad condition.

Dr. Campbell, also of the hospital, testified regarding Dr. Hobbs' condition after the assault and corroborated evidence given by Dr. Fitzpatrick.

Dr. H. M. Vango, pathologist at the University of Alberta, said that he examined the body of Dr. Hobbs and found that he had died of pneumonia and that there were severe bruises on his chest and abdomen. Dr. Vango said that the pneumonia could have been caused by the injuries to the man's chest.

Scott was brought to Edmonton following the trial and was taken to the Fort Saskatchewan jail. It is expected that the trial will be held at Red Deer on October 1.

LINER BREAKS RECORD

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—The Cunard liner Mauretania, which docked last night, claimed to have clipped 43 minutes from her own world's record for the Atlantic crossing from Cherbourg to New York. She completed the voyage to Ambrose channel light in five days two hours and 34 minutes, Captain McNeil, master of the ship said.

from an inspection tour with national guard figures showing the soldiers had put 537 bodies in rough graves. Howard W. Selby, chairman of the Palm Beach county Red Cross committee, estimated the dead at between 700 and 800 after his trip yesterday.

The call for outside help went out from Selby first. "We need financial help badly to the extent of $500,000," he said. Governor Martin conferred with officials here and then immediately issued a call upon every mayor of Florida for all the help possible. In one paragraph he told them why.

"There are 16,000 homeless, 8,000 without a change of clothing, property damage of more than $50,000,000 and Adjutant General V. Collins, of the state troops has already accounted for 537 bodies dead and buried. Seventy-one bodies now are stacked in piles at Pahokee awaiting burial, and conservative estimates are that the death list will mount to more than 800. Ninety-five per cent of the homes and business property is either destroyed or damaged. The situation in the storm area beggars description."

Description of conditions in the hurricane zone brought back by inspection parties and relief workers hardly were readable. They were reflected, however, in statements by Mr. Selby and others on their return.

Selby said:

Workers Affected

"Workers out there have been working with bodies so long their minds have become affected and unless bodies remaining are recovered and buried or otherwise disposed of in 48 hours, evacuation will be necessary, including relief workers.

"We may also have time to spray the entire section with lime from aeroplanes. Workers are burying bodies in quick-lime."

Pretty Church Tea

The home of Mrs. W. J. Drake, 88th avenue, was the scene of a pretty tea on Wednesday afternoon, when the South Side branch of First Presbyterian Ladies' Aid entertained.

The tea table, gay with autumn flowers and foliage, was presided over by Mrs. Norman Cuthbertson, the president. Assisting were Mrs. Walter Douglas, Mrs. S. McQuaig, Mrs. James Ross and Mrs. Russell, and Mrs. W. Pirie looked after the home cooking. Many members and friends called during the afternoon.

Maritime Press Clubs Already Making Plans For 1929 Convention

ST. John, N.B., Sept. 21.—Already preparations are being made to welcome the members of the Canadian Women's Press Club, on the occasion of its triennial meeting in June, 1929 The vice-president for Nova Scotia and New Brunswick extend a welcome in the quarterly bulletin sent out by the club. Mrs. Margaret Lawrence writes:

"We are few in number and far between here in New Brunswick, where the lure of the newspaper has been answered to by some six or seven women, but our hearts go out to you in your hundreds all across the Dominion. We rejoice in your success and in your achievements, we are proud of the girls from the Maritimes that have become headliners and we confess now and again to a wee bit of envy, so great are your opportunities, so wonderful the kings and queens at whose feet you may sit—then we remember Greta Ferris and the fact that when we do erupt it is with the force that distinguished our Fundy Tides, and for the moment we are content."

"BEFORE THEY CALL"

If God so clothe the flowers
  Of lowland and of slope,
He shall fulfil your hours
  Of longing and of hope

For the supreme desires
  And dreams of heart and thought
Were wrought in the same fires
  That their fulfilment wrought.

—Clarence Dan Blachly, in "Poems."

Club Activities

HERE AND THERE IN WOMEN'S WORK

Growing from an organization of 30 members to over 633 in the 17 years during which it has been organized in Edmonton, the Women's Canadian Club of this city holds one of the most prominent places in the spotlight of women's activities today. The first Canadian Club in Canada was organized many years ago in Hamilton, Ontario, to offset an annexation movement, and in the moulding of a public opinion, the creating of a national spirit and the education of Canadians along the avenues of public thought today, it serves a great purpose in the dominion. There are at present 104 Canadian clubs in Canada, with a membership of over 43,000. Through the Federation of Canadian clubs it is possible to bring to the people of the towns and cities a comprehension of the trend of present day views and ideals, through the presentation of famous and well-known figures in speeches, song and story. Prominent Canadians are also brought before the public through the Canadian Clubs.

Besides this, the Women's Canadian Club of Edmonton carries on an educational encouragements competition in the high schools each year, presenting medals for academic proficiency. Mrs. W. D. Ferris is president of the Edmonton Club.

The Bulletin's Daily Short Story From Real Life

By THOMAS BARRY.

JIMMY M'ARDLE was something of a mystery to the "mob." He had never fraternized to any appreciable extent with the denizens of the "one-arm" block he looked upon as home. True, he was friendly enough with the individual members of the gang; in his early teens he may even have played with members who later became unappreciative guests of the state. But, to participate in the activities of the "wise guys of the neighborhood," he would not, and did not! A queer kid, Jimmy.

The Cast of Characters in "Pride"

JIMMY McARDLE remains friendly with a tough gang in his neighborhood but refuses to become one of them. He works as a messenger in Wall Street. His brother,

PETE is the boss gangster. There are those who insisted out of earshot of Pete that Jimmy was yellow. They have an excellent chance to consider that opinion later when Pete is "given the works" by rival gangsters.

The attitude of the younger McArdle was a source of considerable annoyance to the "mob." Often it was declared Jimmy was "tryin' to put on the lug," and sometimes, lieutenants of Jimmy's gangster older brother, guessed that "Jimmy ain't got any too much guts!" However, those who would put Jimmy in his place, walked softly, because Big Pete would have it so. Big Pete was a power in the district over by the railroad tracks. Need more be said?

It is recorded that even Big Pete himself frequently lost patience with Jimmy. The kid had a cherubic cast of countenance, was unknown to the police, and would have made a swell "lookout." Instead, he got a job as a runner in a broker's office—a broker who may have been a little careless—and who didn't bother to check up the lad's environment, or his family.

So Jimmy hit the street at 8 a. m. o'clock six days of the week, and made his way downtown to the towering canyons where the touch of Midas makes the world roll over and play dead. Do you get it? Hitting the grit at eight bells, when he could have stayed in the hay until early afternoon. Chasing around the city with a brief case filled with securities chained to him, when he could have reefed a few cases on a steamship pier, and made a lot more. Running his dogs off for eighteen a week, when he could have hopped aboard an unguarded truck on West st.; driven it to a drop, or switched the load to another truck, and made eight hundred, abandoning the stolen vehicle after the switch. Is it any wonder, according to the lights of the "mob," that they lost patience with Jimmy?

Assuming he didn't want to work the reefing, switching racket, he could peddle a little "snow," couldn't he? Or shove the "queer?" The same being, for the benefit of the uninitiated, narcotics and counterfeit money respectively. Or again, he could ride rum trucks, do a little strong arm work in strikebreaking, or even peddle "smoke," the appalling beverage on sale in myriads of waterfront hideaways.

A Sucker.

YEAH, Jimmy was making a sucker out of himself. Not only that, but some of the "mob" said Jimmy was taking some sort of a schooling course downtown. One heluva note, and the "mob" didn't mean maybe. Especially when you remembered Jimmy's old man. Wanna hear about Jimmy's old man?

Well, Jimmy's old man was bigger'n Pete, even. He was a shanango, who worked when and where he could, loading cargo. Between intervals of loading cargo and juggling freight on piers, and there were long intervals, old McArdle did some plain and fancy cop fighting. It has been freely testified that he had no peer as a cop fighter. In fact, he was so effective, he was even offered an appointment to the police force himself. This on the theory it was better to have him with the "finest" than against them. Of course, he'd get badly beaten up occasionally, and sometimes he'd be sent away. But politics as was politics were the order of those gay, unregenerate days.

You see, New York has quieted down now. The species copfighterus is a vanishing race. And who will mourn its passing? Old McArdle was one of the last to go. He died as he had lived. A full flavored, full-bodied sort of death; full-flavored because he was engaged in the business of repelling a squad of bluecoats who sought to drag him from the shambles into which he had turned a never very tranquil saloon.

In the light of subsequent investigation it was revealed that a rookie cop, with a nervous trigger finger, had become weary of dodging bottles and a menacing cargo hook, and decided the time had come for McArdle to become less splendidly animated. A report, acrid smoke, a flash, and .. huge body joined sawdust on the floor. Reserves from three stations were called to quell the holocaust which followed the rising of the residents; no mean rising! For years afterwards, patrolmen walked that block in pairs. And, strange as it may seem, the long arm of coincidence soon found the body of McArdle's assailant floating face downwards in the North river, a plaything of the tide. Not so nice, is it? Yet, it is within the memory of many, that Hell's Kitchen, Five Points, San Juan Hill, and divers other sections, were never noted for pleasantness. However, we diverge, and fate is dealing from a cold deck:

Jimmy was just 20 when his brother had a talk with him. The place was the front room of the flat on the top floor of the five story tenement where Mother McArdle sought to keep house for the pair, surrounded by trinkets collected by her lamented husband. The fact that the great bulk of these trinkets were police nightsticks, helmets, shields, and brass buttons, worried her not at all. She gloried in it. She, too, was of and from the neighborhood where "a peeler" was a common enemy.

"Kid," said Big Pete, "there's trouble comin'! Y'know we've had the booze concession up as far as 59th st., and now the Rooney 'mob' has told us to lay off. They giv'us a line o' boloney about wantin' to shoot stuff into their own district, see, and I told Rooney to go to hell! Get me?"

Jimmy nodded nervously. He waved his hand. "Listen, Pete," he said, "I ain't in on all that stuff, and I don't wanna be. I gotta good job and I wanna keep it. Keep me out, will ya?"

Pete frowned. His teeth bared in a snarl. "They allus said you was yella," he declared, "an' now you're showin' your streak."

He rose impatiently. "All I gotta say," he snapped, "is watch yourself. You're my brother, see? If they can't get me they'll come after you! If you stick around with us you'll be protected, savvy? I can't send no guard wit' you to and from work, and I ain't gonna; so watch your step. It's plenty trouble!"

"They allus said you was yella," he declared.

The younger McArdle fidgeted nervously in his chair after Pete had gone. He didn't like trouble! He didn't want it! He didn't see why he should be dragged into the mess! Furthermore, he decided he wasn't going to be! At the same time, they might bump him off if the going got hot, and if they knew he never packed a rod. He shrugged.

Two, three, four weeks passed, and from what Jimmy could pick up, the anticipated "trouble" had materialized and was continuing to materialize. Gimpy Davis, favored lieutenant of Pete, had ceased to indicate interest in things mundane. Three-fingered Murphy was in St. Vincent's hospital with a fractured skull, and he was another heir apparent to the McArdle leadership. Vinny Petrosoni of the McArdle entertainment committee was in Bellevue with a knife wound in his side. But the Rooneys had not come through unscathed. Six of the "59th st. racketeers" were included among the casuals, three of them having accompanied Gimpy to a less earthly atmosphere, or port of eternal refuge.

Kicked Off.

Then came the night of the big ball; the annual ball, "thrown" by political leaders—a ball that, this year, was intended to be a harbinger of peace between the McArdles and Rooneys. It is worthy of comment to say it passed off without incident, although supporters of both rulers attended.

Jimmy didn't attend the ball, having no more use for district politics than for other events in the neighborhood, and no invidious comparison or analogy is intended. But he slept restlessly that night, and he leaped out of bed, with all his faculties functioning, when he heard the rapping at the upstairs door at 8 o'clock in the morning. But his heart froze within him when he saw Lefty McGinness and Rocky Simpson, two trusted members of his brother's gang, standing on the threshold as he opened the battered door.

Two men stood looking at him in the dim light from the flickering gas fixture in the upper hall which was filled with dancing shadows. He knew what they were going to say before they spoke. And he wished desperately that they would not speak; that they would keep quiet . . . let him close the door and steal back into the darkness of the silent flat.

McGinness cleared his throat. He took off his hat, and fumbled it in his hands. His squinty, pig eyes peered at the shaking figure of Jimmy, framed in ghostly silhouette, in the open doorway.

"The brother's kicked off," said McGinness. "He was up in the Rich club, after the dance. We left him there about two o'clock. He was playin' solitaire with himself. He said he was gonna stay there for awhile and rest. So we give him the 'good night' and blow."

McGinness paused to light a cigarette. Jimmy saw his hand tremble as he applied the match to the weed.

"I had a hell of a queer feelin' after I left him," McGinness went on. "I got cold all over. So me and Rocky here, after gettin' half way home, doubled back again. We let's ourself into the club room. The lights was out upstairs. We think it's funny. We light a match, and switch on the glimmys. We see The Brother! Yeah, we see The Brother!"

The gangster's voice shook ever so gently. Rocky scruffed his feet on the carpet.

"He was dead, kid," McGinness went on. "Shot in the back! Somebody stuck a gun from behind the red curtain in back of him, and give him the works close up. And he slumped right down on the table. Geez, like he was sleepin'! His face was restin' on cards on the table. Geez, he just looked asleep. He didn't looked dead!"

Young McArdle's fingers whitened as he clutched the jam of the door. He said nothing. McGinness continued:

"We couldn't tip off the cops," said Lefty, "'cause we both got records. But we did get word to the West 47th st. outfit, under cover. We left the door open so they could get in. The Brother's body's at the station now. And we know . . . ! Yeah, Kid, we found out who done it . . . ! It's your play . . . ! It was Rooney himself . . . !"

The boy was white as the gangster finished speaking. "I guess," he said slowly, "it is my play . . . ! Good night! We'll take care of the body—funeral arrangements and all . . . See . . . you . . . later. . . ."

Then he closed the door. . . .

Well, it is presumed that what happened in the next week or so is reasonably clear to you now. If not, young McArdle declared himself to the "mob" and got a gat from Paddy-the-Pig. Then he dropped out of sight. Exactly ten days after Big Pete McArdle was shot, Rooney was found murdered in a 10th ave. hallway. He too had been shot in the back. Detectives working on the case, "broke" it quickly. They arrested Jimmy, charging him with the killing of Rooney. The boy, defiant, apparently proud of what he had done, made no effort to defend himself, and died in the electric chair, satisfied that the honor of the McArdles had been avenged.

Following this, his mother added to her store of press clippings and had a crayon enlargement made of an old photograph of his, which she subsequently hung beside "Popper's" picture.

Real Pride.

BUT, what you may not know, and I didn't either until "Lefty" McGinness died of—God save the mark—"natural causes" is that he and not Jimmy McArdle murdered Rooney. He left a note to one of the old "mob" which, in effect, made known:

Young McArdle couldn't bring himself to killing Rooney. McGinness, sensing this, did the job himself, and while making his getaway from the hallway, bumped into Jimmy. They fled together, "Lefty" gasping out the shooting as they raced towards the river. The note goes on:

"Jimmy begs me for my gun, saying he wants to take the rap because I done a job for him that he should have done. I slips him the cannon, and we parts. Later he's pinched, and I send word I'm comin' back to give up. He sends word back, 'Nothin' doing'. I'll take it! An' if you swear you did it, I'll swear I did it because I was Pete's brother.'

"I go to work on the kid through a mouthpiece (lawyer), but he shoots right back with: 'I was yellow once, Lefty, but I'm not now. I got my pride, you know, and the mob thinks I done it. Keep going!'

"Tie that, Bill," related Lefty in his note, and remember the kid went to the hot seat (chair) with a smile!

"Pride," concluded "Lefty," "Geez!"

THE END.

Green Leaves

The proposed site of the new Normal school, just at the western end of Whyte avenue, brings to mind a rather strange feature of the city that is often passed over.

It was Dr. Gillmore of McMaster university, who first expressed surprise at the unusual arrangement of things in Edmonton when some years ago, he sought to respond to the querry, "What is the most striking thing about the city of Edmonton to your mind?"

The distinguished visitor thought for a few moments and then said, "The end of the road."

In explanation he pointed out that a great many Edmonton streets and roads were so planned that they literally ran into big buildings, beautiful structures, or unusually lovely views.

He referred to the fact that 100 street practically terminated at the Macdonald hotel; 100A street north stopped abruptly in the face of the friendly Y.M.C.A.; many west end streets such as 117, 118 and 119 brought one to the beautiful river bank on the north side. 107 street led south to the stately parliament buildings, and seemed to have completed its task in that direction and at that point. From the top of the river bank at 109 street on the south side, a number of avenues contentedly took one to the University buildings, and then disappeared.

Now comes the new Normal School, in its probable location. Whyte avenue will join in the league of beauty loving and directing streets, and lead those who travel that way into the doors of learning.

Anyone who suggests that streets lead nowhere in particular, is unacquainted with the layout of Edmonton's arteries of travel. Almost any street has a pleasant, if sometimes secret terminal that is worth finding.

And that, to an easterner, was the most intriguing thing about Edmonton! L. C. D.

Poor Baroness Who Escaped Revolution Leads Simple Life

Echoes of the Bolshevist revolution are continually cropping up everywhere. From New Orleans comes the news of the latest one. In that quaint and venerable city, there resides the Baroness Lucienne de St. Mart, who makes her home in a very old and very French part. There, she makes a meagre living by her clever aptitude for restoring old paintings, by making miniatures on ivory and by painting crayon portraits of those who take an interest in her as a decayed member of the old nobility.

Her present fate, like that of the ladies who suffered from the French revolution, is a great contrast to the position and estate to which she was reared; it is a great change from a life of utmost luxury in Russia and France.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Mrs. Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope, forwarded to this office, will bring a personal reply.

REAL MILEPOST IN BABY'S LIFE AT SEVEN MONTHS

For many years I have noted how often a mother discovers that at "seven months" of age her hitherto well regulated baby becomes irritable and sleepless at night, even though his habits before this have been exemplary.

There is a real reason for this in the case of the breast-fed baby. About this time the milk of the average nursing mother is lacking in minerals. Also the baby's pre-natal store of iron is nearly gone. He needs additional foods, his breast feedings no longer completely satisfying him.

The bottle fed baby needs other foods also and his formula may need strengthening. So the baby wakens two or three times at night and refuses to go to sleep without a breast or bottle feeding. Thus he shows his dissatisfaction with his daytime rations.

The mother should make up her mind that times have changed and that she must waken to the necessity of more feeding.

For the breast fed baby, cereal can be added to the diet if it has not already been, giving one teaspoonful to start with at the ten and six o'clock nursing periods. Give the cereal first and finish with a breast feeding.

If this is insufficient to satisfy the baby give a complementary feeding after each nursing or after those nursings at which he refuses to remain satisfied for three or four hours. This should come directly after the nursing and NOT between nursings.

The mother may want to start the weaning process and if she does she can substitute a bottle feeding for a breast feeding. As soon as the breasts fail to receive regular stimulation they fail to secrete as much milk and so weaning begins.

The last feeding is usually the most unsatisfactory one so this should invariably be complemented by a bottle feeding, if the cereal does not do the trick.

Fruit juices, cod liver oil and vegetable soups are in order in the child's diet at this time in addition to the cereal. But in speaking of this seven months old baby it has been taken for granted that he has had no other foods than breast milk.

Old Gentleman—"You've evidently seen better days. Have you no friends?"

Tramp—"No, sir, I was a football referee."

ELLEN TERRY'S SON COMING

When Margaret Anglin was in Toronto last week she talked much of the coming revival of "Macbeth" which George C. Tyler was to make for her this fall, says Cornelia in the Toronto Telegram.

"Our latest word from her this week is that no less a person than Gordon Craig, son of the Ellen Terry whose Lady Macbeth was so memorable, is coming to America to do the settings for the Anglin revival."

BEAUTY SLEEP

The hours of rest between bedtime and midnight used to be known as one's beauty sleep. As a matter of fact, however, it usually takes an hour so so after getting into bed for the average person to relax all the nervous tension acquired during the day. Most of us have had the experience of lying awake in bed for what seemed hours after having retired early in the hope of getting some extra sleep. We do not feel sleepy, but lie there with our minds busily engaged in plans or worries, muscles tense and brows knotted. This sort of resting in bed is not conductive to sleep nor to beauty.

Sleep is one of the prime factors in hastening recuperation from physical ills. It may also be an important beauty aid if the right habits are cultivated. Relaxation of the whole body, especially of the muscles around the eyes and the neck, should be secured just as soon as the head touches the pillow. The pillow should not be high enough to tip the head up so that the chin sinks into the neck or chest, forming a double chin. A small, low pillow is usually best; just large enough to fit into the hollow between the shoulders and the back of the head. The position of the body in sleeping should be such as not to interfere with free, deep breathing. Some people have the habit of curling up in bed, like a cat or dog, with nose under the covers, spine curved and chest hollowed. It is easy to see how this position held for seven or eight hours each night will spoil one's figure.

Sallowness, dark circles and wrinkles around the eyes often owe their presence to incorrect habits of sleeping, lack of sufficient sleep and lack of fresh air in the bedroom. The creases that furrow the faces of chronic worrier or dyspeptics are deepened instead of being relaxed during their hours of restless, fitful slumber.

Night time offers a wonderful opportunity to the beauty seeker, however, if she will learn how to improve it. The skin may be softened and bleached by the right kind of beauty masks or packs left on overnight. Dry scalps may be made healthy by oily applications that do their work during sleep. Superfluous hair on the limbs may be bleached by the use of bandages moistened in a bleaching lotion, brittle fingernails and ragged cuticle may be remedied by applying a food cream and wearing glove-fingers overnight. Girls and women who value beauty should learn to make the most of their hours of rest each night.

What's What

By HELEN DECIE

Oysters, which went out with the last of the "R-months" at the end of April, come into season again in September, first of the eight months containing the rolling letter. But, because of possible sultriness early in the month, epicures prefer to wait until the third week of September for their oysters. As a first course at dinner, raw oysters are served on the half-shell, with accompaniment of sliced lemon, and preferred choice of grated horseradish or tobacco sauce, or they are arranged as oyster cocktails. These, immersed in sauce—a combination of tobasco, catsup and lemon juice—are served in regular cocktail glasses.

In either instance, raw oysters are eaten with the special fork provided for the purpose. If lemon is used, the slice is squeezed over the oysters, which are seasoned to taste. Then the oyster fork is taken in the right hand, each oyster is speared with it and eaten whole. To "make two bites of a cherry" or of an oyster is too finnicky to be in good taste.

GRANDFATHER FROG LOSES HEART

By THORNTON W. BURGESS
(Copyright)

Look before you leap,
The water may be deep.

That is the very best kind of advice but most people find it out when it is too late. Grandfather Frog did. Of course, he had heard that little verse all his life. Indeed, he had been very fond of saying it to those who came to the Smiling Pool to ask his advice. But Grandfather Frog seemed to have left all his wisdom behind him when he left the Smiling Pool to go out into the Great World. You see it is very hard work for any one who has been sought after for advice to turn right around and take advice themselves. So Grandfather Frog had been getting into trouble ever since he started out on his foolish journey. He had gotten into scrape after scrape, and he had landed in it headfirst with a great splash.

All around him rose perfectly straight smooth walls.

Of course, when he had seen the cool sparkling water of the spring it had seemed to him that he just couldn't wait another second to get into it. He was so hot and dry and dreadfully thirsty and uncomfortable! And so—Oh, dear me!—Grandfather Frog didn't look at all before he leaped! No sir, he didn't! He just dived in with a great long jump. Oh, how good the water felt! For a few minutes he couldn't think of anything else. It was cooler than the water of the Smiling Pool, because, as you know, it was a spring, and Grandfather Frog just closed his eyes and floated there in pure happiness.

Presently he opened his eyes to look around. Then he blinked them rapidly for a minute or so. He rubbed them to make sure that he saw alright. His heart seemed to sink way, way down toward his toes. "Chugarum!" exclaimed Grandfather Frog. "Chugarum!" And after that for a long time he didn't say a word.

You see, it was this way: All around him rose perfectly straight, smooth walls. He could look up and see a little of the blue, blue sky right overhead and whispering leaves of trees and bushes. Over the edge of the smooth, straight wall grasses were bending. But they were so far above his head, so dreadfully far! There wasn't any place to climb out! Grandfather Frog was in a prison! He didn't understand it at all, but it was so.

Of course Farmer Brown's boy could have told him all about it. A long time before Farmer Brown himself had found that spring, and because the water was so clear and cold and pure he had cleared away all the dirt and rubbish around it. Then he had knocked the bottom out of a nice clean barrel and had dug down where the water bubbled up out of the ground and had set the barrel down in this hole and had filled in the bottom with clean white sand for the water to bubble up through. About half way up the barrel he had cut a little hole for the water to run out as fast as it bubbled in at the bottom. Of course the water never could fill the barrel, because when it reached that hole it ran out. This left a straight smooth wall up above, a wall altogether too high for Grandfather Frog to jump over from the inside.

Poor old Grandfather Frog! He wished more than ever that he never, never had thought of leaving the Smiling Pool to see the Great World. Round and round he swam, but he couldn't see any way out of it. The little hole where the water ran out was too small for him to squeeze through, as he found out by trying and trying. So far as he could see he just had to stay there all the rest of his life. Worse still, he knew that Farmer Brown's boy sometimes came to the spring for a drink, for he had seen him do it. That meant that the next time he came he would find Grandfather Frog, because there was no place to hide. When Grandfather Frog thought of that he just lost heart. Yes, sir, he just lost heart. He gave up all hope of ever seeing the Smiling Pool again, and two big tears ran out of his big goggly eyes.

Spiral Garage Will Be Built Here Soon To Aid Traffic Plan

City Fathers Draw Up Tentative Revision of By-laws

A good start towards drafting a simple, efficient standardized traffic code to replace the present set of traffic by-laws which has become antiquated and unwieldy was made by the city by-laws committee Thursday night.

With the Toronto traffic code, which Chief A. G. Shute reported as a perfect example of a concise and efficient set of traffic by-laws, as a model, the committee began a tentative draft which, when completed and finally approved by council, will give Edmonton one of the finest traffic codes on the continent.

The city commissioners were instructed by the committee to survey and bring in a schedule of vacant property in the central part of the city which can be utilized as parking areas, thus taking the parking load off the downtown streets.

Plans For Garage

In this connection the Northern Investment Company Ltd., forwarded a letter to the committee, outlining plans for a five or six storey modern garage with spiral runways between floors, which will have a capacity of about 600 cars. The company proposes to build the garage at McDonald drive and 102 street if the city will support by-laws prohibiting parking in the downtown area within a certain prescribed distance of 101st street and Jasper avenue. The company also suggested that 100th avenue be paved to relieve congestion on Jasper avenue. The letter was received by the committee but was tabled pending further action.

Following is a tentative draft of the by-laws dealt with by the committee Thursday night:

1.—All persons on any street shall promptly obey all signals of a constable directing or regulating traffic and comply with the requirements of every sign erected for the purpose of regulating or directing traffic.

Safety Zones

2.—Any portion of any highway, upon which street cars are operated on which an enclosure, at or near the points where passengers board or leave the street cars is marked by the use

SAYS REPORT IS NOT TRUE

The report that the city fire department is to be cut down is utterly false, declared Mayor A. U. G. Bury and City Commissioner David Mitchell, Friday.

Mayor Bury explained that the nine men who are to be laid off on Sunday are temporary employees of the fire department to take the place of regular firemen who are on their holidays in the summer time.

He said they will be taken on again in the winter on account of the increased fire hazard.

"This is an automatic arrangement that has been in force in the city for several years, and the report that these nine men were fired is absolutely false and unjustified as well as the statement that the "city commissioners ordered a drastic cut in fire department," declared Mayor Bury. "It is an automatic annual arrangement."

SATISFACTION EXPRESSED IN RAILWAY DEAL

Opposition Leaders in Legislature Give Views on C.P.R. Bid

General satisfaction with the Canadian Pacific offer for the northern railways and the prompt manner in which the government has accepted it is being expressed in business, financial and political circles throughout the province.

Although leaders of the opposition parties in the legislature are not yet in full possession of the offer, and are therefore not in a position to give a qualified opinion of it in detail, those who have been approached have expressed satisfaction that the government has decided to get out of the railway business in Alberta, and that it has been possible to get out on such advantageous terms.

Conservatives Pleased

"The provincial Conservative party has consistently advocated that the government should go out of the railway business," said A. A. McGillivray, K.C., in a statement issued this morning, "and assuming that the valuation of the lines made by the deputy minister is a fair one, the proposal made by the C.P.R. president was undoubtedly one that should have been accepted. It will relieve in part the people of Alberta from the burdens of debt and taxation under which they have been laboring, and any action that leads to this desirable state of affairs will have the approval of the provincial Conservative party."

Captain J. T. Shaw, K.C., leader of the Liberal provincial party, also stated that on the face of it the offer appeared to be a very good one, and with the information at hand the action of the government appeared to be well advised. However, until further information and all the details were known, he did not propose to pass a snap judgment.

"Undoubtedly full information will be given the legislature when the government is ready, and if the offer is one that should be accepted, I am sure that it will not meet with opposition," he declared.

Lucien Boudreau, M.L.A. for St. Albert, was outspoken in declaring that the C. P. R. offer should be accepted, and expressed his pleasure that the government has acted so promptly.

North Safeguarded

A. L. Giroux, M.L.A., believed that the north country was being safeguarded, and that under the circumstances the acceptance of the offer was wise, but like his leader preferred to wait for further and fuller information before making a final pronouncement.

From the north country itself nothing but satisfactory expressions have been received. The general opinion among businessmen and pioneers in that section is that the rapid development which is taking place there will force the C. P. R. to build even more than the 60 miles of branch lines guaranteed under the deal, and now that President Beatty and his directors have seen the Peace River area and have had an opportunity of studying its possibilities, they are sure that all the needs of that rapidly growing community will be met from a transportation standpoint. Peace River and Grande Prairie residents are enthusiastic over the deal generally speaking, and they believe that it marks only the beginning of a big C. P. R. program in connection with the north country.

Behind Government

Among Edmonton businessmen a similar feeling prevails, and taken all round the "man on the street" appears to be behind the government solidly in the deal which has been made.

GRACE HAS ALL THE GRACES

Grace Brinkley, ingenue of the Broadway revue stage, might be offered as one of the principal reasons why "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," but since that is such a controversial contention she dislikes to be placed in that role. Also, Grace insists that she prefers to keep to herself her own preferences in tastes in things masculine and she expects gentlemen to do likewise. Anyway, she's a real American beauty.

Are Horse Shoes Lucky? "No" Declaims Edmonton Driver

Jehu and His Fiery Steed Take Nasty Toss Over Good Luck Symbols

It would be a grave social error to tell John Galbraith, Edmonton Jehu, of 10847 109th street, or his dray horse "Prince," that horse shoes are symbols of good fortune. If any one has a hankering to be particularly tactless, let him try it. And this is why.

Mr. Galbraith was driving Prince along the Fort Saskatchewan trail at 114th street when a truck operated by James McDonald, 10148 113th street, rolled by. On the truck were several barrels of horse shoes.

Perhaps it was just coincidence, but when the truck was abreast of Prince one of the barrels rolled off right under the horse's feet. Prince started to do a double somersault, but the weight of the rig stopped him and he went down on his nose.

Mr. Galbraith, following the accident, stated with what a novelist would call bitter irony that while Prince needs four good horse shoes to protect his feet from the hard city pavements, he doesn't need them by the barrel-load. Mr. Galbraith was not seriously hurt by the mishap.

Alberta Town Planner May Be Selected Soon Says Premier Brownlee

Horace L. Seymour, town planning commissioner of Vancouver and an applicant for a similar position in Alberta is a visitor in the city and will confer with Premier J. E. Brownlee sometime on Friday.

In addition to Mr. Seymour, said the Premier there were six other applicants, one of whom resided in England.

It was expected a selection would be made at an early date.

The Premier announced that C. Lionel Gibbs, M.L.A., Edmonton would act as chairman of the committee as government representative and that H. M. E. Evans had been nominated as this city's representative with P. Turner Bowen as Calgary's nominee. Later representatives of rural women's organizations and rural men will be added to the committee.

Edmonton's Building Program Given Boost

Considerable impetus was added to Edmonton's 1928 building progress with permits aggregating $18,100 issued by the city building department Thursday afternoon and Friday morning. Permits issued were: G. A. Long, frame dwelling, 11048 80 avenue, $2,600; Cherniak Bros., interior alterations to store, 9849 Jasper avenue, $500; F. Schrofell, frame and stucco houses at 10724 and 10720 97 avenue, each $3,500; Walter Johnson, frame dwelling, 12532 124 street; $2,000; Harry Haynes, frame and stucco dwelling, 10255 134 street, $6,000.

C.N.R. NOT LIKELY TO SHARE DEAL

With Sir Henry Thornton Away, C.P.R. May Get E., D. & B.C. Alone

Whether the Canadian National Railways will participate in one half the obligations and one half the benefits of the agreement whereby the Canadian Pacific Railway is to purchase the Alberta government owned roads is unknown to him, declared Premier J. E. Brownlee on Friday. There had been nothing brought to his attention which would indicate any such participation, he said.

The offer submitted by E. W. Beatty, K.C., president of the C.P.R. contained provision for participation by the C.N.R. but the opinion of well-informed railway men is that there will be no such joining of obligations and benefits. The history of the negotiations would appear to indicate this.

An offer and an amended offer was submitted jointly by the two transcontinentals during the last session of the legislature for the E.D. & B.C. and associated lines and a separate offer was submitted by the C.N.R. for the Alberta and Great Waterways. These offers were rejected.

Both Had Wires

On June 13 last the government wired both Mr. Beatty and Sir Henry W. Thornton, president and chairman of the board of directors, C.N.R. that the government would be willing to accept $25,000,000 for the whole system with the taking over of obligations in respect to the two extensions.

The offer recently made by Mr. Beatty is the first since the June 13 wire of the government's. Since June 13 Sir Henry Thornton has visited this city but made no offer [illegible] negotiations with the [illegible] as he is at present in [illegible] appear that the C.N.R. [illegible] out of the field. However [illegible] ization has until Dec. 31 [illegible] ply to participate.

In the meantime, said the Premier at the proper time, the six months' notice for termination of the existing traffic agreement between the government and C.N.R. will be given, and in due course a formal agreement of sale of the railways will be drawn up between the government and the C.P.R.

40 PER CENT. IS BORNE BY RAIL BOARD

With H. B. Co. Paying $30,000 City Gets Out Cheaply

The city will receive approximately $86,000 from the Dominion government railway crossing fund towards the cost of construction of the 109th street subway, according to a wire received by Commissioner David Mitchell from the Board of Railway Commissioners, outlining the decision of the Board, Friday morning.

The total cost of subway construction is estimated at $216,000 and The Hudson's Bay Company will make a contribution of $30,000 towards this cost.

FORMER SCOUT MASTER FACES GRAVE CHARGE

Taken into custody Thursday afternoon by city detectives, Stanley McCloskey, 43, of 9922 111th street, a former scoutmaster, confessed to criminally assaulting six Edmonton boys.

McCloskey was arrested after city detectives investigated a criminal assault upon a boy in the vicinity of the East End bridge early Sunday morning. The boy reported to his parents that a man had beaten and assaulted him, and a concentrated search was made in the area for the man, but without success.

When McCloskey was [illegible] he is said to have made a voluntary statement to detectives and confessed he had assaulted five other boys. One of the assaults it is alleged, occurred when he was still scoutmaster, and he resigned from the position after scout officials had learned of the case in December, 1927.

City police today are investigating the cases confessed to by McCloskey and it is likely that additional charges of criminal assault will be made, according to Chief Constable A. G. Shute.

Arraigned before Magistrate Primrose today, McCloskey was remanded until September 22 while city police check up on his confessions.

Dad says you need personality to get by these days. That may be all right with the cops, but it don't get you by these signal lights.

GABBY GERTIE

"Women don't approve of keeping the lid on everywhere."

NOT A TEMPO

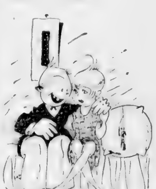
He: Don't you think that's a great tempo he's playing?

She: Why, dear, that's a piano he's playing, I'm sure.

HOW HE GOT AROUND HER

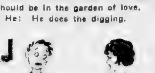
"How do you get around your wife, anyway?"

Hug her, of course."



She: I wonder what man's part should be in the garden of love.

He: He does the digging.



SOME ARE TOO POOR

Returned Tourist: And, my dear, those old churches of Europe have wonderful stained glass windows.

She: My, are they too poor to buy nice clean glass over there?

LABOR PARTY WOULD HAVE GREAT BANK

Advocate Control of Bank of England by Public Corporation

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—The New York Times today publishes the following special despatch from London:

Control of the Bank of England by a public corporation comprising representatives of the treasury, board of trade, industrial interests, labor and the co-operative movement will be advocated by the Labor party in the coming campaign for the general election. The party executive council issued a supplement to its platform, urging the necessity for closer popular supervision of banking and decrying the government's post-war handling of national policy on currency and credit, without consulting parliament.

"There are [illegible] quiet, the Labor manifesto [illegible] during the years of 1920 to 1925 the fin[illegible] out challenge, to force the nation up the long road to deflation."

Serious industrial and social consequences were involved, the party recalls, yet in the adoption and carrying out the policy there was "astonishingly little political discussion."

The conclusion which the party draws is that there is too little connection between political democracy and the forces which control this kind of policy.

The [illegible] of the British co-operative party, which, politics aside, is a great chain of co-operative stores and banks through the country, is seen in the banking and currency manifesto issued on the eve of the party conference, as an after thought to the main trend of the Labor party's program.

SOUND AUCTION BRIDGE

By WILBUR C. WHITEHEAD

The World's Greatest Authority

THE INFORMATORY DOUBLE

An Informatory Double is a double of an adverse bid intended as an invitation for a bid by partner.

To be construed as an Informatory Double three conditions must hold.

1. The bid doubled must not be of more than two of a suit nor of more than one No Trump.
2. The double must be made at first opportunity to double.
3. The partner of the doubler must not yet have bid or doubled.

To double informatively the doubler must be prepared to handle the situation regardless of what the response of his partner may be. He must either be able to support any bid his partner may make or else have in reserve a declaration of his own. This normally requires greater strength than is required for an original bid.

If the intervening opponent pass, the partner of the doubler must bid unless reasonably sure that the bid doubled can be defeated. Weakness is never an excuse for passing. In fact the weaker partner's hand, the greater is his obligation to make a bid.

If the intervening opponent bid, the doubler's partner is relieved of his obligation, unless he hold a stronger hand than his partner could reasonably expect, in which case he should bid, notwithstanding the intervening bid.

An Informatory Double must always be read by partner of doubler as an effort to find a game-going declaration, a Major suit or No Trump. This fact determines his double.

Therefore, if a No Trump bid is doubled, partner should:

(a) If holding two Major suits of four or more cards, bid the higher ranking if the two are of equal length, or the longer if of unequal length.

(b) If holding two Minor suits (of four or more cards) bid the stronger if they are of equal length or the longer if of unequal length.

(c) If holding a Major and a Minor, bid the Major in preference to the Minor even though the Minor be longer, or stronger, or both.

In response to the double of a suit bid, partner should:

(a) If holding a Major suit (of four or more cards) and a possible No Trump, bid the Major suit in preference to No Trump even though holding a stopper or stoppers in the suit doubled.

(b) If holding a Minor suit and a possible No Trump, bid the Minor suit if holding but one stopper in the suit doubled and average or less high-card strength; bid No Trump if holding two stoppers.

(c) If only suit of four or more cards is the suit doubled, bid the strongest three card suit, preferably a Minor, unless holding a possible stopper in the suit doubled, in which case a No Trump should be bid.

Tomorrow's subject will be "Cards Exposed During the Auction."

Today's question, to be answered in tomorrow's article, is this: "If an honor be exposed during the auction, what is the penalty?"

Mr. Whitehead will answer questions concerning your Bridge problems. Write to him care of this paper, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope.

British Harvesters Finding Work Plentiful and Conditions Satisfactory

MINERS FROM BRITAIN MAKE GOOD IN SASK.

Parliamentarians Visit Harvest Fields and Also Labor Bureaus

REGINA, Sask., Sept. 21—In conferences with the Saskatchewan government, in visits to labor exchanges, in interviews with harvesters and in visits to the harvest fields themselves, delegates of the Empire Parliamentary association Thursday probed further into the problem of the miner-harvester. They found that at the Moose Jaw labor exchange there were five hundred vacancies on file for harvesters with no applicants. Farmers were offering from $5.50 to $6 a day with free board and lodging. The five hundred vacancies were for the Moose Jaw district alone. The parliamentarians were told that in the other eight labor exchange districts of Saskatchewan conditions were similar.

At the conference with the provincial government in Regina, Hon. Geo. Spence, minister of labor for Saskatchewan, said that of the six thousand miner-harvesters who had come to Saskatchewan as part of the British movement all of whom the officers of his department had been able to find unplaced, numbered 54, and of these 25 had come from a neighboring province. On the whole the movement had been a success.

No Complaints

"I have not yet had a single complaint from a farmer," Mr. Spence declared. It was inevitable, however, that there should be some complaints, but, he added, "we may congratulate ourselves on having a very great deal of success with the movement."

To cope with the problem of employment once the harvest was over, a conference had been called between colonization bodies and the Saskatchewan section of the United Farmers. Mr. Spence had every confidence that with the skeleton organization created, it would be possible to deal with the situation.

Delegates had questions to ask.

Viscount Peel wanted to know if, in view of tthe present shortage of labor, it would be possible for Saskatchewan to take more harvesters.

Should Organize

Mr. Spence replied that the amount of labor required would naturally depend on the quantity of the harvest. But if more time were given to organize, he thought it would be possible to handle more men. In the case of the present movement from Great Britain, the first he had known of it was from a newspaper dispatch. More time should be given to organize. It should also be remembered that the farmer could not take a chance with his harvest.

Sir D'Arcy Lindsay, of India, said: "Do you think you will be able to absorb all of the six thousand harvesters who came to Saskatchewan or will you arrange with other provinces to take a quota?"

Mr. Spence—"We are not concerned with other provinces. We are making plans to take care of all we can within our own borders."

Replying to Rt. Hon. Thomas Shaw, Mr. Spence said that no official complaint had been made to his department of complaints from Canadians in other provinces that their labor had been replaced by harvesters from Great Britain.

Should Have Experience

Acting Premier Latta observed, however, that there had been some complaints in the eastern provinces. Mr. Latta, citing cases, emphasized that what was needed most of all was grit and determination to succeed. Capital might help, but again it might not. In any event, a man should have three years' actual farming experience in Canada before starting out to farm for himself.

Rosslyn Mitchell, Socialist member for Paisley, Scotland, had a rather sharp encounter with a discontented harvester at Moose Jaw. Along with Sir Samuel Chapman, Conservative member for Edinburgh, Mr. Mitchell had visited the labor exchange, interviewed some of the waiting farmers and inspected the forms filled out for help. The two M.P.'s afterwards interviewed a small knot of discontented British harvesters who had complaints to make.

"Why don't you take one of these jobs?" Mr. Mitchell said, giving the names of farmers requiring men and the pay offered.

One of the harvesters replied that he left a wife and three children dependent on him in Glasgow, but he did not intend to go harvesting. He was waiting to be sent back.

A Better Plan

"If I had a wife and three children depending on me in Glasgow," Mr. Mitchell replied, "I would not sit on a windowsill smoking cigarettes like you are doing. I'd take one of these jobs at six dollars a day and do something for them."

"Stick it, boys," was the final word of the two British M.P.'s as they drove away.

TWENTY KILLED

Viscount Peel Was Real Duck Hunter; Kept Regina Supplied

Shot Hundreds Twenty Years Ago—Acting Premier of Saskatchewan Tells of Clothes That Will Not Wear Out

REGINA, Sept. 21.—Viscount Peel once fed Regina on duck for nearly a week.

He told the story Thursday to a delighted audience at the lunch given by the government of Saskatchewan in honor of delegates of the Empire Parliamentary association. Lord Peel related how 20 years ago he had shot duck in the Qu'Appelle valley. He had shot so many different kinds of ducks, hundreds of ducks, that the Regina of those days must have fed on them for nearly a week. "But they didn't give me the freedom of the city," he said mournfully. "Perhaps they were tired of eating duck."

And acting premier Latta also had an entertaining experience to relate. He was emphasizing that the Saskatchewan winter was not so severe as was popularly supposed. "In 23 years," Mr. Latta said, "I have never worn any other clothing than I have on now."

Everybody laughed.

"We have to be economical here," Mr. Latta rejoined, joining in the laughter.

And Lord Peel jokingly congratulated Mr. Latta on the durability of Regina clothing.

Rt. Hon. Thomas Shaw urged that the empire must rise beyond the view of any one race in the empire. He pressed that it should be an empire not of wars, but an empire of culture, encouraging the arts, music, science and literature.

Hon. Cyril Fox, speaker of the Newfoundland assembly, predicted that Newfoundland was destined to have a mineral development which would revolutionize not only her industrial life, but the whole life of the colony. He spoke of Newfoundland's history as the oldest of British colonies, its attachment to the motherland, its proven loyalty.

SIR O. MOSLEY IS DEAD AT HILTON LODGE

ETWALL, Derbyshire, Eng. Sept. 21—Sir Oswald Mosley, aged 54, died today at Hilton Lodge.

The heir to the baronetcy is Oswald Ehnald Mosley, Labor member of parliament for Smethwick, who married Lady Cynthia Curzon, second daughter of the late Marquis Curzon of Kedleston in 1920.

There has been speculation in England whether young Mosley would accept the responsibility and prerogatives of the baronetcy. Both he and his wife scoff at titles and his wife has announced that she wants no other prefix than plain "Mrs."

Recently information from Brussels stated that Lady Cynthia explained that since the two joined the Labor party they have been cut and snubbed by English society.

When they first talked about relinquishing titles in 1926, Sir Oswald, in a letter to the Daily Mail, taunted his son and daughter-in-law saying that more valuable help would be rendered the country if, "instead of achieving cheap publicity," they would take more material action by giving up some of their wealth to "make easier the plight of some of their more unfortunate followers." His son characterized the suggestion as "entirely farcical," and said it was better to use their wealth to advance "the cause we have at heart."

Lady Cynthia is a grand-daughter of the late Levi Z. Leiter, Chicago millionaire.

GOV. AL SMITH SAYS UNFAIR TACTICS USED

Deplores Injection of Religious Issue and Whispering Methods

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Sept. 21—Carrying his fight for the presidency into the border state of Oklahoma, which is torn by political strife, Gov. Smith last night deplored the injection of the religious issue and "whispering" methods into the campaign, defended his record as chief executive of New York, and urged the voters of the United States to make their choice in the November election solely on the ground of what best promotes the interest and welfare of the republic.

In a speech prepared for delivery here in the Coliseum, the Democratic nominee directed an attack at former Senator Owen of this state, who has bolted the Democratic party to support Herbert Hoover, assailed Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, an assistant attorney-general, as a "dishonest" campaigner in behalf of Mr. Hoover, and made specific reference to the Ku Klux Klan, whose members, he said, "have the effrontery to refer to themselves as 100 per cent Americans."

Approve Tactics

The Democratic nominee rebuked Mrs. Willebrandt particularly for her appeal to Methodists in Ohio to take a stand against his candidacy, and asserted that "by silence after such a speech the only inference one can draw is that the administration approved such political tactics."

"[illegible] campaign [illegible] It is un-American. It is out of line with the whole tradition and history of this government, and to my way of thinking, is in itself sufficient to hold us up to the scorn of the thinking people of other nations."

"I here emphatically declare that I do not wish any member of my faith in any part of the United States to vote for me on my religious grounds. I want them to vote for me only when in their hearts and conscience they become convinced that my election will promote the best interests of our country.

Not Religious Issue

"By the same token, I cannot refrain from saying that any person who votes against me simply because of my religion is not, to my way of thinking, a good citizen."

The five survivors are not at present sufficiently recovered to testify, according to word received at the department of marine and fisheries from the owners of the ill-fated ship. The inquest has been adjourned until Sept. 28 and will, it is believed, be still further adjourned until the departmental investigation is completed.

INDIA AGENT ATTACKED IN SOUTH AFRICA

Solomon, acting governor-general of South Africa.

The official account contained an expression of regret on behalf of the South African government and stated that action would be taken against Evans in due course.

Sastri was the guest of honor at a dinner given by the Indian community at Klerksdorp.

The agent-general commenced his address. Evans rose and protested. Simultaneously some one suddenly extinguished the lights.

Mr. Sastri, standing on the platform, was the target of several eggs which were thrown by the attackers, but none hit him. Panic ensued in the hall when the rowdyism started, and the audience rushed out to the street. Later the meeting was continued in an orderly manner in the open air.

Goes to Hotel

Marylebone Cricket Club Given Rousing Send-Off at Victoria Station, London—Will Play Five Test Matches in Antipodes

LONDON, Sept. 21 — Hundreds of people asembled at Victoria station yesterday to give the main body of the Marylebone cricket club — the English representative team — a rousing send-off when they started the first leg of their journey to Australia in defence of the mythical [illegible].

The station echoed with three hearty cheers for the team and a special one for Jack Hobbs, of Surrey, dean of English batsmen, as the players left for Marseilles, whence they will sail on the steamer Otranto for the Antipodes. The first of the five test matches will be played at Brisbane on November 30.

Hobbs is making his fifth visit to Australia as a member of a M. C. C. eleven. His ten partnerships with Herbert William Sutcliffe, of Yorkshire, in previous test matches have always produced more than 100 runs for the first wicket. Hobbs and Sutcliffe are regarded as the greatest pair of opening batsmen England has produced and great hopes are placed on them on the forthcoming tour.

Chapman is Captain

A. P. F. Chapman, of Kent, under whose leadership England regained the "ashes" from Australia in 1926 has again been selected to captain the English eleven. Three of the 1926 test matches were drawn, one was abandoned and the final was won by England in a sensational match at Kennington Oval by 289 runs.

The English team chosen for the 1928-29 Australian tour follows:

A. P. F. Chapman, (captain); A. P. Freeman and Leslie Ames, of Kent; John Cornish White, (deputy captain) of Somerset; D. R. Jardine and J. B. Hobbs, of Surrey; H. W. Sutcliffe, Maurice Leyland and Ernest Tyldesley, of Yorkshire; George Duckworth of Lancashire; Walter Hammond, of Gloucester; Maurice Tateen, of Sussex; Sam Staples and Harold Larwood of Nottinghamshire; Elias Hendren, of Middlesex, and C. Philip Mead, of Hampshire.

LOG ROLLING CHAMPION

Wilbur Marx, aged seventeen, of Eau Claire, Wis., recently won the eleventh world's championship log rolling tournament for the second [illegible] in succession.

Soccer Players Are Censured by Council Of Football Ass'n.

At a special meeting of the Edmonton and District Football Association held last night to hear the evidence of Bobby Davidson of the Caledonian football team for his part in the affair in the Dragoons Cup final when both he and Colin McKay of the C.N.R. were ordered from the field, the case was discussed.

After the referee's report was received and discussed and the evidence of Davidson was taken the council considered all angles of the case very fully.

The council's official decision was as follows: "That, in view of the insufficient report of the referee, that players Davidson and McKay be severely censured and that the management of both clubs be warned that they would be held responsible for the conduct of their players in the future."

Letter to The Sports Editor

Sporting Editor,
Edmonton Bulletin,
Dear Sir:—

At a meeting of the executive of the Caledonian football club held last evening it was decided that they will not be able to field a team on Saturday for their scheduled game against the C. N. R.

The Edmonton District Football Association also held a meeting and came to a decision whereby players Davidson and McKay were censured. The attack on Davidson by McKay in the final of the Dragoon Cup was so serious that the insurance committee feel that they cannot take any more chances on injuries to players after the decision arrived at by the council of the E. and D. F. A.

We regret to take this action as we have always been in the habit of giving our best to the football fans in this city and at the same time our standing in the league shows that we still have a good chance to win the league.

Yours truly,
Caledonian Football Club
Per. H. Caldwell,
Sec.-Trea.

By Al Demaree
(Former Pitcher New York Giants)

One of the star home run hitters of the big league was complaining to me the other day about a fine plastered on him by an umpire because he threw his bat up into the air on being called out on strikes with the bases full.

"Besides the $50 fine," he said, "I got docked three days' pay, which amounts to up around $300."

His complaint recalled to me the custom of players making up pools to make good fines assessed against their mates. It shows the right team spirit, when the men are ready to stand or fall together, even when it hits their pocketbooks.

If a man is fined $50 by the umpire, the players take up a collection and pay it back to him.

Art Fletcher was fined $100 during the 1913 World Series, for beefing at the umpires. That night one of the players came up to him and handed [illegible] bill. Ten of the men on the club had chipped in so that Art wouldn't have to pay alone for fighting for the club.

NO OPPOSITION FOR REGINA'S RUGBY SQUADS

REGINA, Sept. 21 — Moose Jaw's supremacy in softball, and Regina's supremacy in rugby football were demonstrated in no uncertain manner last Saturday afternoon when the Mill City Swift-Canadian nine swept the diamond championship of Southern Saskatchewan in two straight victories and the Roughriders and Pats of Regina swamped their Moose Jaw adversaries in the initial fixtures of the new gridiron season.

Really Fine Squad

The seniors 24-2 triumph was scarcely a surprise as it has been maintained all along that Regina is housing a much finer football squad than many of the fans seem to be aware. But it certainly handed the new Tri-City league, in its maiden week of operations, a pill. Give the Maroons plenty of credit for a game fight against heavy odds on Saturday to be sure; but waving all sentiment aside, unless stern measures are taken to improve the Moose Jaw squad they're going to prove a big flop as a drawing card in the other two cities in the circuit.

It remained for the Junior Pats, coached by "Hank" Ritchie and managed by the smiling bland, Colin Foster, to dish up the real surprise of the day by whitewashing Moose Jaw. It is customary to expect Pat rugby squads to win games, but not only two real workouts have been indulged in prior to their first test of the fall. And the wimmin—The terrible wimmin who had been luring the gang away from practice — wasn't it possible that a lot of them would be parked on the sidelines, detracting the attention of the players and generally playing havoc with Ritchie's system? But the boys concentrated on rugby and came through with a win that will go a long way toward strengthening the morale of the squad and paving the way for another Western Canada title.

Must Do Something

Something will have to be done about the juniors as well as the seniors if that six-game schedule with the Pats is going to amount to anything worth more than a very small bill of inexpensive cheap bean

Stages Come-Back

Jack Delaney, of Canada, who scored a technical knockout over Nando Tassi, of Italy, in the 11th round of a scheduled fifteen round bout at Ebbett's Field, Brooklyn, last night. It was Delaney's first fight since he was stopped by Jack Sharkey last April.

YANKS LOSE TO CHICAGO A'S SUBDUE THE TIGERS

Hogan's Homer With Bases Full in Eighth Saves Giants from Double Defeat at Hands of St. Louis Cards

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 — The lead of the Yanks was cut to one game yesterday when the White Sox defeated the champions 4 to 3 in twelve innings after the Athletics had defeated Detroit by 6 to 1. Old Red Faber outpitched George Pipgras and Waite Hoyt, at Chicago.

Picked by most critics to finish in the second division, the St. Louis Browns clinched third place in the American league standing with a 5 to 2 victory over Boston at St. Louis.

Alvin Crowder pitched his nineteenth victory against five defeats for the season. Manush, leading batsman of the league, got one single in three times up.

The ever-threatening Philadelphia Athletics cut the lead of the Yanks by winning the first game of the series from Detroit at Detroit by a 6 to 1 score.

The aged right arm of Jack Quinn the oldest of the major league pitchers was too much for the Tiger batters yesterday. They could get only six hits off his moist delivery and the only run they made was due directly to a fumble by Jimmy Dykes, Philadelphia shortstop.

GIANTS AND CARDS SPLIT TWIN BILL

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—Big Frank Hogan, stepping into his role like the best of dime novel heros, saved what little remains of the New York Giants' pennant hopes yesterday, just as it seemed the St. Louis Cards were about to dash off with a double victory and all but clinch the National league flag on the spot.

With two out and the bases filled in the eighth inning of the second game, Hogan, smashed one of old Pete Alexander's curves into the left field stands for a home run. This resounding wallop enabled the Giants to come from behind in spectacular fashion to win the second game, 7 to 4, after the Cards had bombarded Larry Benton and captured the first game 8 to 5, chiefly through a trio of home run drives by George Harper.

Cincinnati swept its way to a 7 to 2 win over Boston in the opening game but lost the night cap 9 to 5 at Boston after the Braves had made eight runs in the first inning. In this inning Bell hit a homer into the left field bleachers with the bases full. His single in the seventh gave the Braves another run.

Pirates Beat Phillies

The Pittsburgh Pirates opened their final four game series of the season by beating the Phillies six to four at Philadelphia.

Both Carmen Hill and Cloude Willoughby went the route for their respective games, each surrendering 11 hits that included home runs but Virgil Davis and Lloyd Waner.

In addition to his homer, "Little Poison" had two singles and a double. Manager Donnie Bush and Pete Scott of the Pirates, were chased by the umpires for arguing decisions at the close of the seventh inning.

STANDING OF LEADING TEAMS

While fans in the east were in a turmoil over the double-header between the Giants and the Cardinals at the Polo grounds, the Athletics quietly cut the lead of the Yanks in the rival circuit exactly in two. The Mack men accomplished their part of the contract by defeating Detroit, 6 to 1, while the White Sox rushed to the aid of the Philadelphians by shading the Yanks 4 to 3 in twelve innings. The Yanks now lead by only one game.

x-One game against Boston dropped from schedule.

Nobody but the Cubs profitted from proceedings at the Polo Grounds yesterday when "Shanty" Hogan, as the Giants affectionately call him lifted one into the left field stand on old Alex, the great in the eighth inning of the second game to give the Clan McGraw an even break. The Cards thus held their two-game lead over the Giants, both New York and St. Louis were pulled down one game nearer the Cubs in defeats. Chicago was idle.

Review of Sport

By REG HAMMOND

Reports from Vancouver state that definite plans of organization bringing the Pacific Coast Hockey League into existence have been completed and the new loop which is to revive the professional game on the coast will embrace four cities—Vancouver, Victoria, Seattle and Portland.

But, what about professional hockey on the prairies this winter. Will those interested be able to bring about the linking up of Edmonton and Calgary with the three-cylinder league in Saskatchewan? That is the question that is occupying the minds of local lovers of the favorite winter pastime at the present.

From all indications Kenny MacKenzie, former magnate of the Edmonton Eskimos in the days of the old Western Canada league, is ready to dabble in the game once again. Eddie Poulin, mentor of the Calgary Junior Canadians for the past number of years is also ready to tackle the proposition in Calgary, providing of course, that some satisfactory arrangements can be reached with regard to a team in Edmonton.

It is quite evident that efforts to revive the pro game in Alberta will receive a serious set-back unless public opinion is behind the move.

Does Edmonton and Calgary went professional hockey? The answer to that question is worrying those interested in placing the paid game on a sound basis in the two Alberta cities.

The Prairie League of two winters ago suffered to a great extent through lack of patronage. It certainly was not the fault of the performers. They dished up a brand of hockey that would have done credit to far superior company. What is the answer?

Some say that the league was not handled properly while others (those who did not see even one game) were positive that the calibre of hockey was not on a par to that of the old Western Canada League. In that we agree. But don't forget that in those days the prairies had the best hockey there was. But alas, those days are gone forever.

Why not support a minor league class of professional hockey? If not quite as high class as that in former years, it has just as much action, and deserves much better support than it got two season ago.

Jack Delaney Scores Technical Knockout Over Nando Tassi of Italy

REFEREE STOPPED FIGHT IN THE ELEVENTH ROUND

Was Canuck's First Battle Since He Was Knocked Out by Jack Sharkey Last April—14,000 Fans Saw the Bout

EBBETTS FIELD, BROOKLYN, N. Y., Sept. 21—Jack Delaney of Canada scored a technical knockout over Nando Tassi, of Italy, last night in his first fight since he was knocked out by Jack Sharkey last April. Delaney stopped the game Italian battler in 25 seconds of the 11th round.

Referee Eddie Forbes stepped in and saved Tassi from further punishment. The Italian was splashed blood from a badly damaged nose, still was trying bravely to carry the fight to Delaney who had softened up his man with a barrage of uppercuts at the end of the previous round. Delaney weighed 181 three pounds more than Tassi.

The one-time "rapier of the north" was easily master of the situation all the way, despite some courageous forcing on the part of the Italian. The crowd was visibly disappointed at Delaney's failure to produce a stiffening punch and there were a few boos when his hand was raised.

The Preliminaries

Lou Barba, 191 1-2, of New York, carried the fight to Paul Hoffman, 190 1-2, of Holland, and won a decision in a six round bout.

Harry Fay, Louisville heavyweight, won a decision over Johnny Urban of Pittsburgh in a six round bout.

George Fiodalisi, university student, was sent down for the count by Jackie Black of East New York.

In the other four-rounder, Benny Mosely, 132, and Tommy Romeo, 135, both New Yorkers, fought to a draw. Delaney's only moderately impressive return to the ring, under the promotership of Humbert J. Fugassy, drew a crowd of 14,000 fans.

Joyner Won On Foul

In the semi-final which followed the main bout, Ollie Joyner, 167 1-2, of Tampa, Fla., won on a foul from Amadeo Grillo, 172 1-2, of Italy, after one minute and 15 seconds of the fourth round.

It was just beginning to look as though the main bout would go to the schedule 15 rounds when Delaney began to score in the tenth. His lefts had started Aassi's nose bleeding in the ninth and the tenth was just one right hand after another—uppercuts and straight right jolts colliding with the injured feature. Tassi made it worse by driving Delaney into the latter's own corner near the end of the tenth, the French-Canadian doing plenty of damage in the in-fighting.

In the first round, Tassi went down for the count of eight, half slipping under a flurry of Delaney lefts. He slipped to the canvas twice in the following rounds, once in the sixth and once in the ninth.

AMATEUR GOLF TOURNEY FOR JASPER, 1929

Dominion Event Positively Assured for Alberta Course

JASPER NATIONAL PARK, Alta., Sept. 21 — Authentic information was received here last night by the visiting senior golfers from Great Britain that the U. S. National amateur golf tournament will be held next year over the Pebbles Beach course, California, from September 2 to 7. With these dates now definitely assured it is also possible to state positively that the Canadian amateur championships will be held over the Jasper Park Lodge golf course next year from August 19 to 24.

The defining of these two important dates in the golfing programme for 1929 leaves an interval of a full week between the Canadian and U. S. amateur events and it is more than likely, therefore, that the Canadian championships will attract a large number from the galary of stars in the United States and other countries who will be westward bound for the U. S. event.

Should these hopes be fulfilled, and every effort is to be made by the Royal Canadian Golf Association and the Canadian National Railways to bring them to fruition, the 1928 Canadian amateur championship will be the greatest event in the history of golf in Canada.

EXPECT CLOSE SOCCER GAMES

League Leaders Should Win Games Saturday, However

LONDON, Sept. 21 — Saturday's matches in the first division of the English soccer league should enable the teams now at or near the top to improve their positions. Derby County, league leader, at home, plays Bolton Wanderers, who are at the bottom. Liverpool meet Leeds United at Liverpool and ground advantage will contribute a good deal towards the decision. West Ham United are hosts to Manchester United. A close affair should be the game between Huddersfield Town and Everton in the Yorkshire City. Sheffield soccer fans will be divided by the games between the two home clubs, the United and Wednesday.

In the second division Chelsea, the leaders, visit Bristol City, and should win. The second team, Notts County, go to Reading and a victory there for them is expected.

In Scotland the top notchers in the first division have apparently easy jobs. Celtic entertain St. Mirren, Rangers Raith Rovers, Third Lanark go to Kilmarnock and Motherwell visits Hibernians.

"Graf Zeppelin" With 90 Aboard Makes Flight

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Sept. 21—The new giant dirigible "Graf Zeppelin" completed what was regarded as its first real test flight Thursday when with 90 persons aboard it covered a distance of over 1,900 kilometres in 9½ hours.

After taking off from Friedrichshafen at 8 o'clock this morning it flew across Lake Constance at an elevation of 200 metres, soon reaching Switzerland. An hour after its take-off it flew over Zurich to the amazement of up-and-about early populace of that city.

The flight was continued to Basel, and thence down the Rhine. The appearance of the dirigible over Frankfort completely paralyzed that city's traffic, all work ceasing and street cars stopped.

Friends of Mr. Davis assert that he will not oppose the divorce and that Roszika is asking for a settlement of $100,000 a year.

Hitting the Line

By GRIDDER

The regular nightly practice of the Eskimo rugby club held at Renfrew Park last evening was devoted almost entirely to interference work which the two coaches hope to develop to a greater degree this season.

Canadian football, the way it is played now, calls for a team to have this work down perfectly if it is to attain any degree of success on the gridiron. With this in view the boys are getting plenty of practice along these lines and the results from this training are becoming gradually apparent to those interested onlookers who make their way to the park every night to watch the team go through its paces.

Clipping, a few years ago practically unknown to rugby followers in the west, is now one of the most important features of a successful system of interference and this is being constantly drilled into the team candidates. They go into this with a will and those on the receiving end of a good clip come down with all the force of a hard tackle. It is something that calls for absolute perfection in order to ensure any degree of safety for the ball carrier and aspirants for the squad have put in hours of hard work getting it down "pat."

Extension plays also claimed part of the spotlight last night and the team went through these with lots of snap. Only a few signal plays have been used so far but next week the team will get down to intensive signal drill which it will need for the opening game against the University of Alberta squad on Saturday, Sept. 29.

With Eric Duggan at quarter again this season the direction of the team on the field should be in capable hands. "Eck" developed into an ideal man for this important post last year and his work this season will be watched with extreme interest. In all the years that the former Eskimo senior teams were a threat in Western rugby ranks, this was one spot at which they were woefully weak, but Duggan seems to be capable of filling it to the satisfaction of everyone.

"Catsy" Mills, who was booting the ball last night while the halves were running back kicks, showed up well and will probably lend a lot of reserve strength to the club in this department. With McLennan to carry the bulk of the load and Mills on hand in an emergency the coaches will have little to worry about in this this respect.

Varsity, under the tutelage of Wally Sterling, hopes to field one of the strongest squads that has worn the Green and Gold in many years. Sterling first learned his rugby with Toronto Varsity, later coaching Victoria College of that city. Coming west, he coached the team at Regina Collegiate and has acted as a referee.

Reports coming out from the grid on the south side of the river indicate that the "Rah-rah" boys are working their hardest in order to get into shape for their first clash with the Eskimos. They will also compete in the Western Canada Intercollegiate Rugby Union, where they will endeavor to lower the colors of the University of Manitoba who sailed through both Saskatchewan and Alberta to easily cop the honors last year.

With some of last season's starts on hand together with the freshmen crop, the new coach should have little difficulty in rounding out a nice-balanced outfit.

British Tennis Stars Give Fine Exhibition At Moose Jaw, Sask.

MOOSE JAW, Sask., Sept. 21 — Moose Jaw tennis fans were treated to a series of sparkling exhibition matches yesterday when the visiting English Davis cup team opposed ranking Saskatchewan players. The English players won all matches, but the Saskatchewan stars made play interesting.

Walter Martin, western Canada singles champion, played brilliantly against H. W. Austin, seventh ranking player in the world. He was beaten however, 6-4, 6-4.

Alf. Renee, Saskatchewan champion, played Dr. J. C. Gregory, captain of the English team, the former losing 6-4, 6-1.

KILLS HIMSELF

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—Frank A. Clark, 65 years old, who retired on a pension as general auditor of the Erie railroad last April, shot himself through the heart Thursday in Central Park, near the marble arch at 66 street and the cross drive.

A score of women and children screamed as they heard the shot and saw Clark fall.

Our responsibility to the men who buy Tip Top Clothes

AT Tip Top Tailors, we try to be every bit as particular with the style, fit and making of a garment we sell at our standard price of $27 as if it were made to sell at $100.

This is only sound business sense. The man who can pay $100 for a suit of clothes doesn't need to worry very much if he should occasionally get a garment that doesn't absolutely satisfy him in every respect. But the man who pays $27 has to get satisfaction out of the garment he buys in any case.

Tip Top Tailors — even although they are the largest one-price tailors in the world—simply cannot afford to give any customer the slightest cause for dissatisfaction in his purchase. So, we cheerfully accept the responsibility for every garment we make and back up every sale with an absolute guarantee of satisfaction or money back.

The result is that, among our regular customers, are thousands of men who could easily afford to pay $100, or more, for tailored-to-measure clothes.

JOTS FROM MYTHOLOGY

THE SATYRS of ancient mythology were deities of the woods and fields. They were covered with bristly hair, their heads decorated with short, sprouting horns, and possessed feet like goat's feet. These beings, half man, half goat, were thought to be in abundance in the ancient world.

GRAIN MARKETS FINANCE

ERRATIC MART AT WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG, Sept. 21—One of the most erratic markets of the year was witnessed during today's trading on the local grain market. October wheat fluctuated within a limit of 6⅛c and closed higher, while the whole range of months finished 5½c to 5⅞c higher. During the session October wheat rose to 118 and May 123½.

Good rains in the Argentine and Australia and lightness of offerings influenced the market. The sudden upturn was mainly due to a flood of orders from Chicago and while the latter market advanced slightly, the local market ran wild, at one time the high point being 5½c over the previous close on October, influenced the market.

Export business was reported to be improving rapidly.

Demand on the cash grain section was good and spreads were unchanged.

The coarse grain market was influenced by the upturn in wheat. Prices in all grains moved higher.

A flood of orders from Chicago to buy Canadian wheat which were met with comparatively few offers to sell, sent values in wheat soaring on the grain exchange today in the last hour of trading. Wheat closed from 5½c to 5⅞c above Thursday's close. October at 117¼ bid November 117¾ asked, December 117¼ and May 123⅜.

In sympathy with wheat, coarse grains leaped upward. Rye led with a gain of 4⅛; oats were up 1⅛ to 1¼; barley up 3 cents and flax advanced from 1½ to 2 cents.

Some traders today stated that export business has been fairly large despite statements to the contrary, and that in the past thirty six hours number 6 wheat has been sold for export. It was pointed out that the volume of business would appear to be curtailed by the absence of more liberal offerings.

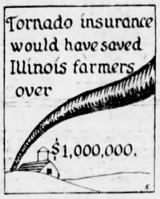
Money at Work For the Small Investor



Tornado insurance would have saved Illinois farmers over
$1,000,000.

Farmers in southern Illinois lost more than one and one-quarter million dollars in the tornado of several years ago because they had no tornado insurance at all, or were under insured.

From an estimate based on farm to farm survey of all the counties in Illinois which the tornado hit two years ago, the Illinois Agricultural Association puts the tornado loss at $2,000,000.

The farmers recovered less than $700,000 from insurance, leaving a net loss of $1,338,689. In Illinois 573 farms were found to have suffered seriously with an average loss of $2336 a farm.

The cost of tornado insurance is nominal when compared with those losses, yet many farmers were insulted at the mere thought of taking it out. Perhaps those who were prevailed upon to take out tornado insurance have forgiven the insult by now.

Market Review

By Solloway, Mills Co.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 21.—There was little news on the street today. However, the mining market remained firm, some issues scoring substantial gains, especially the nickel group, International Nickel and Mond. The former in small trading on the Standard exchange gained $1 to close at 128½ to 130, while the latter, although it has received but little attention on the Standard, suddenly jumped into the limelight and closed $5.25 better at $32.25 to $32.50. Activity in this stock has been anticipated for some time and it may be expected that the stock will give a better account of itself.

Noranda sold off 20 points to close at 51.80 to 52.00, while Newbec was firm around 54. Amulet in heavy trading lost one point to close at 325 to 330, while Area lost 3 at 27 to 28.

The two Erenhous stocks, Bidgood and Crown Reserve, gave a much better account of themselves today, especially the latter which, after opening at 50, sold up to 59, closing 58½-59 for a net gain of 9½ points. The former at 63½ to 64 was up 3½.

Others of the Kirkland group did not do so well, however. Kirkland Lake was decidedly weaker, closing 145-149. Teck was off 10 at 890-895, and Wright Hargreaves was off 1.

Sherritt Gordon and Sudbury Basin were also weaker, the former closing off 15, while the latter was off 1.

In the Porcupine group, Hollinger was strong and up 18 at 870-875, and McIntyre was up 20 at 21-80-22.00, while Dome lost 10 at 940-990.

Jackson Manion gained 4 in closing at 85 bid. Hudson Bay in closing at 20.00-20.10 was off 10 from yesterday. Abana was heavily bought again and up 23 at 350-352. Barry Hollinger was also heavily traded in and lost 1⅛ points at 54-55.

Victory loans: 1933, 102.70; 1934, 102.40; 1937, 105.90 to 106.00.

Refunding loans: 1928, 99.75; 1943, 172.60; 1944, 98.75; 1940, 98.90; 1946, 98.90.

LOWERING RATE OF CALL MONEY

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—The stock market resumed its upward price movement today after an early period of irregularity. Lowering of the call money rate from 8 per cent. to 7½ per cent, coupled with bankers' intimations of easier rates next week, helped to reive bullish enthusiasm which had been dampened by the stiff money rates of the past few days. Wall Street was inclined to attribute the increase of $85,000,000 in brokers' loans last week to the increase in new bond offerings rather than to stock speculation.

The opening break of nearly ten points in Freeport Texas, half of which was recovered by mid-day, was attributed to the reduction from 75 to 25 cents in the extra dividend at yesterday's meeting.

Wright Aero dropped 9 points and Curtiss 5¾, but both rebounded in the afternoon.

General Motors was again the market leader, climbing more than 4 points to a new 1928 high at 218½.

In the oils, speculation centred in Sinclair, Superior, Middle States and Lago. Purity Baking common and preferred each jumped about 5 points to new highs at 133½ and 168 respectively.

Greene Copper, with an extreme gain of 8 points, led the Coppers. American Express, Ludlum Steel, Otis Elevator, Lambert, Dupont, Houston Oil, General Asphalt and International Combustion, all sold 3 to 5 points higher.

The close was strong. General Motors went above 218 and independent issues like Hupp and Hudson, which sold at 75⅞ and 85⅞, respectively, brought about a strong rebound in many shares. Dupont sold above 400.

Total sales approximated 4,500,000 shares.

AT THE PANTAGES

Pantages vaudeville returned to this city in somewhat of the nature of a triumph on Thursday evening and occupied its former stamping ground at the corner of Jasper avenue and 102 street. A capacity audience was on hand and greeted the successive acts with whole-hearted and spontaneous, not to say lavish applause.

The occasion was dignified by the presence of His Honor Lieut. Gov. Dr. William Egbert and party. His Worship Mayor A. U. G. Bury and party, and many prominent citizens and citizenesses.

There were all the ear-marks of an impressive ceremony about this opening or re-opening, for the return of the long-lost favorite. Following the presentation of a couple of most attractive motion picture films, Manager Walter P. Wilson, one of the most popular theatre managers ever to preside over the destinies of a home of entertainment here, appeared on the scene and was greeted with salvos of applause. He bowed his thanks and introduced His Worship the Mayor, who officially welcomed back the Pantages circuit, regretted its departure some two years ago, and hoped that the good burghers would display their customary good judgment and take in the shows. He, too, was the recipient of much applause.

The theatre presented an attractive sight. Much of the re-decorating has been done, and many new furnishings have been added. A much needed floor on the stage has been laid while many new sets of scenery are on view. Ushers appeared in natty new uniforms and the whole presented a decidedly inviting picture.

Right from the start it was apparent that the program was to be one of undoubted excellence. Al Preston veteran of many years campaigning in a theatre pit, stepped into the glare of the orchestra stand lights followed by several other old reliables who formed an orchestra worthy of the best traditions of music in the local Pan house. Their playing of the melodious well-scored selection from "Rio Rita" and a pepped up version of Toselli's "Serenade" proving highly popular. The movies were of a high order. First came a series of "Screen Snapshots" showing a host of Hollywood favorites in "mufti," going about private business, partaking of daily pleasures or perchance going to the theatre themselves. Next came a short, colored picture built around the historic episode of Sir Walter Raleigh laying his coat on the muddy ground for "Good Queen Bess" to walk over, and the gallant knight's subsequent love affair with and marriage to the Mistress Throgmorten. A prettily told and well acted little story, this.

Turning to the vaudeville acts themselves, the big parade was led by the Mitkus Duo, a balancing act which bears favorable comparison with the best of its kind ever seen here. The most difficult feats were made to seem easy and the whole moved with ease and assurance. Some of the stunts well nigh "brought down the house."

Elsa Stralia, Australian prima donna soprano, followed. She opened off-stage with Rudolf Friml's "Indian Love Call," finishing on the stage. This being put over big, she swung into Victor Herbert's favorite "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," from "Naughty Marietta." As a concession to current popular taste she then sang "Beloved." Miss Stralia has a powerful voice of wide range and sang with confidence and plenty of reserve power. She registered heavily on all numbers.

"Flapper Freshies," a peppy bunch of school girls, laughed, joked and danced their way into the good graces of the audience. Some of the jokes ran close to the line of the risque, and others had done yoeman service for years, but all were put over in a bright, breezy manner that took any alleged offence away and gave them an ever-welcome twist. The dancing was specially good, reaching a fitting climax with the "Varsity Drag," now dragging its way to success in most metropolitan centres. The act went over big.

Ferris and Ellis in "Romy and Julie" have a comedy and singing act of more than ordinary merit. They relied mostly on the singing to go over with "Italian Street Song," and a burlesque on the "Miserere" from "Il Trovatore," as their heavy guns. A [illegible] unexpected climax is reached in this act.

"Silks and Satins," occupied the closing spot. Here was an attractive singing and dancing act with the dancing outdoing the singing. Al Garbelle and his quintette of comely assistants provided 15 minutes of highly attractive entertainment, their dancing running the gamut from old time measures to the latest from Hawaii and Broadway. This is truly a high class dancing offering and should prove popular.

For the first three days of next week, Richard Barthelmess in "Out of the Ruins," a picturization of Sir Philip Gibbs romance will be shown while for the last three days vaudeville will again occupy the stage.

AT THE CAPITOL

A simple, yet forceful love tale is "The First Kiss," co-starring Fay Wray and Gary Cooper, "Paramount's Glorious Young Lovers," which opened at the Capitol theatre last night. It is by far, one of the finest efforts on the part of any producing organization in transferring a really fine story to the screen.

Fay Wray and Gary Cooper appear as the principal characters in the same picture for the second time in their scene career in "The First Kiss." Their first effort, "The Legion of the Condemned," has already made motion picture history. "The First Kiss" will make it again.

AT THE RIALTO

Malcolm McGregor who plays one of the principal roles in the Tiffany production "The Girl From Gay Paree" which is the feature attraction at the Rialto theatre today and tomorrow, plays the part of a young and susceptible reporter throughout the picture. This was a role to the liking of the handsome young juvenile who always wanted to be a journalist from the time he left college, but fate decreed otherwise, making him a popular motion picture player. In the cast with McGregor are such well known players as Lowell Sherman, Barbara Bedford, Betty Blythe, Margaret Livingston, Templar Saxe, Walter Hiers and Leo White.

Graydon Tipp and his band with Helen Shirlaw are appearing on the stage every night at 8:45 in the latest in songs and dances.

AT THE PRINCESS

One of the most romantic and picturesque as well as the fastest and most thrilling pictures Ken Maynard has ever made is his latest, "The Canyon of Adventure" which is at the Princess theatre today.

AT THE MONARCH

"Happiness Ahead," Colleen Moore's new picture, at the Monarch theatre is the 21st production she has made for First National Pictures. Miss Moore first appeared on the screen as a First National actress in "Dinty," which was followed soon after by the biggest success of her early pictures, "Flaming Youth." During the 21 pictures she has been starred in comedy-dramas, romances, and costume pictures, proving herself versatile in the extreme.

"Happiness Ahead," produced by John McCormick, was especially written for Miss Moore by Edmund Goulding, and scenarized by Benjamin Glazer. William A. Seiter directed the production, with a supporting cast including Edmund Lowe, Lilyan Tashman, Edythe Chapman, Charles Sellon, Arthur Housman and Diane Ellis.

COMING TO THE RIALTO

"Motherhood" the picture coming to the Rialto next week starting Monday was produced with the aid of the leading surgeons of the American Continent and they are the authorities for the above statement.

AT THE EMPRESS

It is a good thing that talking movies are making their appearance in Hollywood if "The Cop", now showing at the Empress theatre, is a criterion of the extent to which the silent films can descend.

One really weak film can do more to confirm ones impression of the myopism of the picture makers than a whole succession of classics can make one think there is something good coming from the producers.

"The Cop", beginning with an inelegant title goes from bad to worse as one reviews, first the alleged plot, the injudicious casting, the resulting weak acting and direction and finally the poor photography. Jacqueline Logan as the female apache of New York's Hell's Kitchen makes the best of a bad job and shows glimpses of acting but it must be admitted that even as a featured player she is passe.

The rest of the cast is amateurish, not excluding William as the heroic "Cop". Sentimentality seeps through the film. All the devices known to bring glycerine tears to the pretty heroine and to give excuses for gun battles are brought into play with a lamentable lack of subtelty and resource.

The comedy film is one of the much overdone "Our Gang" series and is not a bit different from thousands of others that have preceded it.

COMING TO EMPIRE

George Robey's celebrated conglomeration of jolly entertainment, "Bits and Pieces," is not only a vehicle to introduce the great London comedian to Canada, it is also a particularly bright show from start to finish, teeming with talent, and offering plenty of variety. It comes to the Empire for 3 days on Thursday, September 27. Mr. Robey is aided and abetted in his jests by Miss Marie Blanche, a favorite of London and the provinces. She first attracted notice when starring with Ronald Coleman in Birmingham. The last time Colman left Hollywood to visit England she was one of the first of his old friends he looked up.

Miss Blanche is a charming girl, and comes of a theatrical family for several generations back. She is fitted to play in more than comedy, but has been induced to play in "Bits and Pieces" because she seems made for the many roles she assumes in it, and is a perfect partner for the nimble-witted Robey. With a graceful stage presence and brightness in her roles, she also displays a real love of fun-making and is happy with the audience. Her voice is so good and so well trained that she is provided with special numbers to display it, and is also given an opportunity to charm her audiences with her violin. From such appearances to comedy roles in partnership with Mr. Robey is quite a step, but she slips from one scene to another entirely different with a rare display of ability.
